Maryland State Normal School,

~BALTIMORE.~

THE MARYLAND STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, established by the School Law of 1865, and reorganized under the Law of 1868, is intended for the "instruction and practice of Teachers in the science of education, the art of teaching, and the mode of governing schools."

ADMISSION.

Each county is entitled to send two students for each of its representatives in the General Assembly.

The apportionment is as follows:

Allegany County, 12; Anne Arundel County, 10; Baltimore County, 14; Baltimore City, 42; Calvert County, 6; Caroline County, 6; Carroll County, 10; Cecil County, 8; Charles County, 6; Dorchester County, 8; Frederick County, 12; Garrett County, 6; Harford County, 10; Howard County, 6; Kent County, 6; Montgomery County, 8; Prince George's County, 8; Queen Anne's County, 8; St. Mary's County, 6; Somerset County, 8; Talbot County, 8; Washington County, 10; Wicomico County, 8; Worcester County, 8.

Persons desiring to enter the School, should make application to the Board of School Commissioners of their respective counties, or to the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the city of Baltimore. The law requires the appointees to be selected "by the several Boards of County School Commissioners, and the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore, from among persons having scholastic qualifications hereinbefore required for teachers," the evidence of which shall be the certificate of the County Examiner or City

Superintendent to that effect. They must be not less than sixteen years of age, if young women, and not less than seventeen, if young men, and must "file a written declaration that their object in obtaining admission is to qualify themselves as Public School Teachers, and that it is their intention to engage in the profession of teaching within the State."

When the legal quoto from any county, or from the city of Baltimore, is filled, applicants from that county or from Baltimore City should address the Principal, enclosing a certificate of scholastic qualifications and a letter of recommendation from the County Examiner, or from the City Superintendent.

Students who are under age, or deficient in scholarship, can enter a Preparatory Class on paying the tuition fees.

SESSIONS.

The School year of nine months is divided into two Sessions. The Fall Session, of 1899-1900 commences on Tuesday, September 12th. The Winter Session commences on the first Wednesday in January and closes on the last Thursday in May.

Students will be admitted to entrance in the first week of the Fall and Winter Sessions, and not at any other time, unless previous arrangements have been made with the Principal to that effect.

New Students must be present on Tuesday, September 12th, and former Students, desiring a re-examination in Physics, Mineralogy and Geology for promotion must also be present on Tuesday, September 12th.

EXPENSES.

Students appointed by the County School Boards, or by the Baltimore City Board, are under no expense for tuition, English text books, and School stationery.

In addition to the regular appointees, there will be received, as required by law, a limited number of students of the proper age and scholastic acquirements, "who shall pay twenty-five dollars per session for tuition, and purchase their own text-books."

Such students are not required to become teachers.

BOARDING.

Boarding can be obtained in the immediate neighborhood of the school at prices varying from $3.50 to $4.00 a week and within half an hour's walk, at $3.00 a week. The boarding houses selected by students must be approved by the Principal before the students are admitted.

Students who have no acquaintances in the city should make early application to the Principal, who will see that they obtain suitable accommodations.

Course of Instruction.

The course of instruction extends through three years. Candidates for admission may enter the second year's (middle) class, on passing an examination, on the studies of the first (Junior) year, and the third year's (Senior) class on passing an examination on the studies of the second (middle) year.

Observation of actual teaching, in both Normal and Model Schools, with notes thereon is required of every class.

SINGING AND DRAWING are taught in every Term except the last, also sewing (to women,) and Military tactics and the use of Wood-working Tools (to men).

Students will be examined on entrance in order to ascertain the proper class to which they should be assigned. Admission to the lowest class will require that the candidate should be able to read fluently, spell correctly, write legibly and rapidly, and pass a satisfactory examination also in Arithmetic, Geography, History of Maryland and History of the United States, English Grammar and Physiology. Young persons who have not received a good Primary education, should not expect to obtain it at this school, under the claim that they are training for teachers; but all due allowance will be made for earnest and diligent students who will exert themselves to obtain a good standing during the first term of probation. No student will be allowed to enter an advanced class until all the work required in the lower classes has been performed satisfactorily.

Inquiries are often made regarding the length of time required to complete the course. It is impossible to give a definite answer to this question. The examination for diplomas is open to all students in good standing who have been at the school for one year. Experience shows that while some students have graduated in two years, the majority require three years. Students differ very greatly, both in natural ability and acquired preparation. It is not expected that all shall make equal advancement in equal times. To fail to pass an examination is of itself no disgrace. The disgrace lies in the want of due diligence ; or, still more, in the desire to seem to be that which one is not.

The main object of the school is to give professional training to those who intend to become teachers, and all the departments of study are considered as means to this end. But the general course is well adapted to those who have no professional object in view, and wish merely to obtain a thorough and liberal education. Temporary certificates will be given to students who complete satisfactorily the studies required by law ; but the permanent diploma of the school which authorizes the holder to teach in any public school in the State is not given until after one year's successful experience as a teacher.

Maryland State Normal School,

~BALTIMORE.~

THE MARYLAND STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, established by the School Law of 1865, and reorganized under the Law of 1868, is intended for the "instruction and practice of Teachers in the science of education, the art of teaching, and the mode of governing schools."

ADMISSION.

Each county is entitled to send two students for each of its representatives in the General Assembly.

The apportionment is as follows:

Allegany County, 12; Anne Arundel County, 10; Baltimore County, 14; Baltimore City, 42; Calvert County, 6; Caroline County, 6; Carroll County, 10; Cecil County, 8; Charles County, 6; Dorchester County, 8; Frederick County, 12; Garrett County, 6; Harford County, 10; Howard County, 6; Kent County, 6; Montgomery County, 8; Prince George's County, 8; Queen Anne's County, 8; St. Mary's County, 6; Somerset County, 8; Talbot County, 8; Washington County, 10; Wicomico County, 8; Worcester County, 8.

Persons desiring to enter the School, should make application to the Board of School Commissioners of their respective counties, or to the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the city of Baltimore. The law requires the appointees to be selected "by the several Boards of County School Commissioners, and the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore, from among persons having scholastic qualifications hereinbefore required for teachers," the evidence of which shall be the certificate of the County Examiner or City

Superintendent to that effect. They must be not less than sixteen years of age, if young women, and not less than seventeen, if young men, and must "file a written declaration that their object in obtaining admission is to qualify themselves as Public School Teachers, and that it is their intention to engage in the profession of teaching within the State."

When the legal quota from any county, or from the city of Baltimore, is filled, applicants from that county or from Baltimore City should address the Principal, enclosing a certificate of scholastic qualifications and a letter of recommendation from the County Examiner, or from the City Superintendent.

Students who are under age, or deficient in scholarship, can enter a Preparatory Class on paying the tuition fees.

SESSIONS.

The School year of nine months is divided into two Sessions. The Fall Session, of 1900-1901 commences on Tuesday, September 11th. The Winter Session commences on the first Wednesday in January and closes on the last Thursday in May.

Students will be admitted to entrance in the first week of the Fall and Winter Sessions, and not at any other time, unless previous arrangements have been made with the Principal to that effect.

New Students must be present on Tuesday, September 11th, and former Students, desiring a re-examination in Physics, Mineralogy and Geology for promotion must also be present on Tuesday, September 11th.

EXPENSES.

Students appointed by the County School Boards, or by the Baltimore City Board, are under no expense for tuition and text books.

In addition to the regular appointees, there will be received, as required by law, a limited number of students of the proper age and scholastic acquirements, "who shall pay twenty-five dollars per session for tuition." Such students are not required to become teachers.

BOARDING.

Boarding can be obtained in the immediate neighborhood of the school at prices varying from $3.50 to $4.00 a week and within half an hour's walk, at $3.00 a week. The boarding houses selected by students must be approved by the Principal before the students are admitted.

Students who have no acquaintances in the city should make early application to the Principal, who will see that they obtain suitable accommodations.

Course of Instruction.

The course of instruction extends through three years. Candidates for admission may enter the second year's (middle) class, on passing an examination, on the studies of the first (Junior) year, and the third year's (Senior) class on passing an examination on the studies of the second (Middle) year.

Outline of Course of Study.

Observation of actual teaching, in both Normal and Model Schools, with notes thereon is required of every class.

SINGING AND DRAWING are taught in every Term except the last, also sewing (to women,) and Military tactics and the use of Wood-working tools (to men).

LATIN has been made an elective study, and students who, upon entrance, elect to take Latin must continue its study during the entire course.

Students will be examined on entrance in order to ascertain the proper class to which they should be assigned. Admission to the lowest class will require that the candidate should be able to read fluently, spell correctly, write legibly and rapidly, and pass a satisfactory examination also in Arithmetic, Geography, History of Maryland and History of the United States, English Grammar and Physiology. Young persons who have not received a good Primary education, should not expect to obtain it at this school, under the claim that they are training for teachers; but all due allowance will be made for earnest and diligent students who will exert themselves to obtain a good standing during the first term of probation. No student will be allowed to enter an advanced class until all the work required in the lower classes has been performed satisfactorily.

Inquiries are often made regarding the length of time required to complete the course. It is impossible to give a definite answer to this question. The examination for diplomas is open to all students in good standing who have been at the school for one year. Experience shows that while some students have graduated in two years, the majority require three years. Students differ very greatly, both in natural ability and acquired preparation. It is not expected that all shall make equal advancement in equal times. To fail to pass an examination is of itself no disgrace. The disgrace lies in the want of due diligence ; or, still more, in the desire to seem to be that which one is not.

The main object of the school is to give professional training to those who intend to become teachers, and all the departments of study are considered as means to this end. But the general course is well adapted to those who have no professional object in view, and wish merely to obtain a thorough and liberal education. Temporary certificates will be given to students who complete satisfactorily the studies required by law ; but the permanent diploma of the school which authorizes the holder to teach in any public school in the State is not given until after one year's successful experience as a teacher.

Maryland State Normal School, Baltimore.

THE MARYLAND STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, established by the School Law of 1865, and reorganized under the Law of 1868, is intended for the "instruction and practice of Teachers in the science of education, the art of teaching, and the mode of governing schools."

Admission

Baltimore City and each county is entitled to send two students for each of its representatives in the General Assembly. The apportionment is as follows:

Allegany County, 12; Anne Arundel County, 10; Baltimore County, 14; Baltimore City, 42; Calvert County, 6; Caroline County, 6; Carroll County, 10; Cecil County, 8; Charles County, 6; Dorchester County, 10; Frederick County, 12; Garrett County, 6; Harford County, 10; Howard County, 6; Kent County, 6; Montgomery County, 10; Prince George's County, 10; Queen Anne's County, 8; St. Mary's County, 6; Somerset County, 8; Talbot County, 8; Washington County, 12; Wicomico County, 8; Worcester County, 8.

Persons desiring to enter the School, should make application to the Board of School Commissioners of their respective counties, or to the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore. The law requires the appointees to be selected "by the several Boards of County School Commissioners, and the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore, from among persons having scholastic qualifications hereinbefore required for teachers," viz: "Certificates of the first grade shall embrace orthography, reading, writing arithmetic, geography, history, English grammar, book-keeping, algebra, and natural philosophy; and those of the second shall embrace orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, history and English grammar," the evidence of which shall be the certificate of the County Examiner or City Superintendent to that effect. They must be not less than sixteen years of age, if young women, and not less than seventeen, if young men, and must, "file a written declaration that their object in obtaining admission is to qualify themselves as Public School Teachers, and that it is their intention to engage in the profession of teaching within the State."*

When the legal quota from any county or from the City of Baltimore is filled, applicants from that county or from Baltimore City should address the Principal, enclosing a certificate of scholastic qualifications and a letter of recommendation from the County Examiner or from the City Superintendent.

Students who are under age, or deficient in scholarship, can enter a Preparatory Class on paying the tuition fees.

Classifications

Students will be examined on entrance in order to ascertain the proper class to which they should be assigned. Admission to the lowest class will require that the candidate should be able to read fluently, spell correctly, write legibly and rapidly, and pass a satisfactory examination also in Arithmetic, Geography, History of Maryland, and History of the United States, English Grammar and Physiology. Young persons who have not received a good primary education should not expect to obtain it at this school, under the claim that they are training for teachers; but all due allowance will be made for earnest and diligent students who will exert themselves to obtain a good standing during the first term of probation. No student will be allowed to enter an advanced class until all the work required in the lower classes has been performed satisfactorily.

Diplomas and Certificates

Inquiries are often made regarding the length of time required to complete the course. It is impossible to give a definite answer to this question. The examination for diplomas is open to all students in good standing who have been at the school for two years. Experience shows that while some students have graduated in two years, the majority require three years. Students differ very greatly, both in natural ability and acquired preparation. It is not expected that all shall make equal advancement in equal times. To fail to pass an examination is of itself no disgrace. The disgrace lies in the want of due diligence; or, still more, in the desire to seem to be that which one is not.

*If there be not applicants sufficient from any county or the City of Baltimore, then the State Board of Education may fill all vacancies by selecting applicants possessing the requisite qualifications, from any other portion of the State, in the proportion aforesaid.

The main object of the school is to give professional training to those who intend to become teachers, and all the departments of study are considered as means to this end. But the general course is well adapted to those who have no professional object in view, and wish merely to obtain a thorough and liberal education. Temporary certificates will be given to students who complete satisfactorily the studies required by law; but the permanent diploma of the school, which authorizes the holder to teach in any public school in the State, is not given until after one year's successful experience as a teacher.

Sessions

The School year of nine months is divided into two Sessions. The Fall Session of 1902-1903 commences on Tuesday, September 9th. The Winter Session commences on the first Monday in January and closes on the last Thursday in May.

Students will be admitted to entrance in the first week of the Fall and Winter Sessions, and not at any other time, unless previous arrangements have been made with the Principal to that effect.

New Students must be present on Tuesday, September 9th, and former Students, desiring a re-examination in Physics, Mineralogy, Book-keeping and Geology for promotion must also be present on Tuesday, September 9th.

Expenses

Students appointed by the County School Boards, or by the Baltimore City Board, are under no expense for tuition and text books.

In addition to the regular appointees, there will be received, as required by law, a limited number of students of the proper age and scholastic acquirements, "who shall pay twenty-five dollars per session for tuition." Such students are not required to become teachers.

Boarding

Boarding can be obtained in the immediate neighborhood of the school at prices varying from $3.50 to $4.00 a week, and within half an hour's walk at $3.00 a week. The boarding houses selected by students must be approved by the Principal before the students are admitted.

Students who have no acquaintances in the city should make early application to the Principal, who will see that they obtain suitable accommodations.

Course of Instruction

The course of instruction extends through three years. Candidates for admission may enter the second year (Middle) class, on passing an examination on the studies of the first (Junior) year, and the third year (Senior) class on passing an examination on the studies of the second (Middle) year.

Observation of actual teaching in both Normal and Model Schools, with notes and written reports thereon, is required of every class.

SINGING AND DRAWING are taught in every term except the last, also Sewing (to women) and the Use of Woodworking Tools (to men).

LATIN has been made an elective study, and students who upon entrance elect to take Latin must continue its study during the entire course.

General Plan of the Courses

Science and the Art of Teaching

(a) Psychology: The elements of Psychology by Compa^{ré} is the text-book used, and class lectures are given suggesting the application of the principles therein stated in actual teaching. The principal standard writers upon the subject have been consulted, and attention is called to an excellent collection of the best authors upon the subject in the school library.

(b) Pedagogy: Lessons in Pedagogy extend through the three years and are arranged thus:

Junior Year. Compayré's History of Pedagogy is read and its several subjects discussed. The life-period of a nation, its civilization, progress, laws, customs, are compared with its means and limitations in educating its people and the value attached by it to education. Inspiration is gained through studying the life of the earnest and successful teacher, while a knowledge of the principles underlying his teaching is sought.

Middle Year: Theory and practice are combined in lessons for primary classes; principles underlying all true teaching are emphasized; means of securing the attention of the pupils and the power to keep them busy are dwelt upon; special attention to the dispositions, the habits of children that come under the student's own observation is advised; the making of schedules in conformity with the requirements of the several grades is practiced.

Senior Year: Instruction in this year embraces a knowledge of the laws governing physical, moral and mental growth; effect of environment; discipline; practice lessons in elementary studies; criticisms upon the same; the encouragement of individual method rather than imitation; the art of questioning so as to stimulate and to secure the end sought for; aesthetics in the school room.

In all recitations the student is required to obtain not only a thorough knowledge of the subject matter for herself, but how to teach that subject to another, adapting her presentation to the special requirements of the individual mind.

Students of all classes are required each year to observe in the Model School where they see illustrated principles and methods taught them in the Normal department. They are taught to trace here effect back to cause, to note the processes of the development of the subject in the minds of the several children, and to form their own laws for the same; to study closely the relationship existing between pupil and teacher, the influence of the teacher upon the mind and habits of the pupil, and the cause of this influence. The students report upon their observations, inferences, etc., in a conference held weekly, conducted by the teacher in charge of this department.

(d) School Law: The text of the School Laws of the State, and of the By-Laws, Rules and Regulations of the Public Schools of the State are studied, and their application in Baltimore City and in the Counties.

History and Civics

(a) History: The course in history is limited to the 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th centuries in England, France, Germany, the United States and to such Spanish and Italian history as is incidental. One period daily in the Junior Year from January to May is given to this study. Students have no text-books. Teaching is done by lecture. A question box, pictures, maps and charts are used as helps. Outside work required varies from year to year, as does the method of taking up the work. Some years, students are required to copy and illustrate by maps and pictures their notes on the lectures; in others, principal events in each country are written in parallel columns, pictures and maps being arranged at the end of each century; in others, students answer in writing once a week one review question, and hand in one theme on a subject assigned, with a scrap-book containing bits of history, pictures, etc.; in still others, four themes are required, one on a subject from each century.

As to the order of taking up the history, some years events are taken contemporaneously in the four centuries; in other years, each country is considered separately. The greatest emphasis is always laid on sequence of events, great movements, the evolution from class rights to those of the individual, from feudalism to self-government.

(b) Constitution of the United States: The germs of the written constitution in history; its antecedents in England, especially the "Magna Charta" and the "Bill of Rights"; the proposal by Franklin of a union of the British Colonies in America; the adoption of the "Articles of Confederation;" the Constitutional Convention of 1797, and the ratification of the Constitution are discussed in class lectures. The text of the Constitution and of its amendments, and the application thereof in the government of the United States are then studied.

(c) Constitution of Maryland: The establishment and development of the government in Maryland is taught by class lectures, of which notes are made by the students. In the preparation of the lectures, all the standard histories of the Colony and of the State have been consulted, especially those of Dr. William Hand Browne, Col. J. Thomas Scharf; the publications of the Maryland Historical Society and of the Johns Hopkins University. A careful study has also been made of original documents, viz:—The instructions of Cecilius Calvert to Leonard Calvert previous to the sailing of “The Ark” and “The Dove;” the Charter of Maryland; each of the Constitutions of the State, and the Amendments adopted.

The text of the present Constitution and its application in the government of the State is then studied.

Work in English

(a) English and Composition: English has two periods a week in the first half of the Junior Year. Usually the lessons are not assigned, but the students are drilled in the use of such words as are commonly used incorrectly. This is done by original sentences, given by pupils, containing the word or by mimeographed sentences with blanks to be filled.

Students are required to give oral descriptions of persons, places, etc., and to reproduce stories. Spelling lessons, including the analysis of words, the writing of diacritical marks and the sounds of letters, are given.

The work in English Composition consists of: (1) Written and Oral Observations. (2) Daily themes—through which are taught Punctuation, Capitalization, Words, Sentences, Paragraphs. (3) Fortnightly themes—descriptive, narrative, etc. (4) Written reviews of such books as Ramona, The Last of the Mohicans, The House of Seven Gables, My Lady Rotha, When Nighthood was in Flower, To Have and to Hold, etc. (5) Letter writing: Business Letters. Social Notes. Friendly Letters.

(b) English Grammar : The work during the Junior year consists of a thorough study of the different parts of speech, syntax, analysis, parsing.

During the Middle year, the work includes a review of the study of the inflexions ; more difficult syntax or constructions ; and more advanced analysis and parsing.

Pupils receive their instruction in the above courses mainly from the teacher.

Lockwood's "Lessons in English" is put into the hands of every pupil, and the texts of Meiklejohn, Maxwell, etc., are used for reference.

In the Senior year, grammar includes the analysis of difficult constructions, examples of case, mood, and tense forms, the grammatical and historical relation of words to one another, the changed meaning of words, their derivation, synonyms, correction of false syntax, paragraphs, punctuation, versification, figures of speech, composition, distinctness of style. As facility of expression is best acquired through expression, much practice in composition is given not only in this but in other studies.

In English, Meiklejohn's English Language is closely adhered to as the text-book. Collateral matter is also taken from Fowler's Large Grammar, Lounsbury's English Language, Whitney's Language and the Study of Language, and Morris's English Accidence.

(c) History of the English Language: Language in general is touched upon, as well as the family of languages, and the group to which English belongs. The history of our language is carefully and fully traced from its dialectic form in the lowlands of Germany to its present composite condition.

(d) Literature : (Junior Year). American Literature.

(1) The following selections from American Authors are read in class :—Irving's "Sketch Book," Hawthorne's "Tales of the White Hills," Longfellow's "Evangeline," "The Courtship of Miles Standish," and some of his shorter poems, Lowell's "The Vision of Sir Launfal" and Bryant's "Thanatopsis."

The following suggests the character of the home reading done during the year: Hawthorne's "The House of the Seven Gables," "Tanglewood Tales" and "Wonder Book," Irving's "Tales of a Traveller" or "Alhambra," Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans," Longfellow's "Hiawatha" and Whittier's "Snow-bound."

(2) Study based on the reading,—Figures of speech, making of outlines, use and kinds of words, sentences and paragraphs, comparison of prose and poetry, study of versification—verse, stanza, meter, foot, rhyme, rhythm, etc., word pictures, inductive study of the characteristics of the author with proofs by quotations from the text.

(3) Suggestive topics assigned for oral recitations and for essays.

(4) Quotations memorized from all selections read in class, and illustrated note books carefully prepared.

(5) Life of every author and critical library references studied after the careful study of the text.

(6) History of American Literature,—Outline of history in three periods with sub-divisions and chief writers memorized. Lectures on amount and kinds of writing at different periods with causes, tendencies and comparison of writers. Use of class charts and outlines.

(7) Celebration of birthdays of American authors. Large calendar kept with picture of author placed on the date of his birthday; talks and quotations prepared voluntarily by pupils.

(Middle Year). English Literature. (1) The following selections are read in class,—Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," "Julius Cæsar," Pope's "Translation of Homer's Iliad," Addison's "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers"; read at home,—Shakespeare's "Macbeth" and "As You Like It," Carlyle's "Essay on Burns," Scott's "Ivanhoe" or "Kenilworth," Eliot's "Silas Marner," and Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield."

(2) Study based on reading,—Drama; plot—outlining by scenes, statement of theme, comparative importance in every act, climax, catastrophe, etc.; characters—inductive study by reference, quotations and comparisons; search questions assigned, answered and discussed. Comparison of novel and drama; outlining of essays; study of poetical forms; figures of speech, etc.

(3) Suggestive topics and essays.

(4) Quotations and note-books.

(5) Lives of authors and library references, after class study of their works.

(6) History of English Literature. Outline of history in eight periods with chief authors memorized. Study of rulers in England and chief events of history of every period and their effect on literature. Lectures and chart drills on tendencies of periods to poetry or prose with causes, comparisons of periods and writers. Various summaries and outlines. Especial attention is given to periods from the sixteenth century to the present time.

(7) Celebration of the birthdays of English authors.

(Senior Year). English Literature. (1) Selections read in class,—Milton's "Paradise Lost," (books I and II) or minor poems; read at home,—Macaulay's "Essays on Addison," or "Essay on Milton," Tennyson's shorter poems, Wordsworth's shorter poems.

(2) A study of outlines, figures of speech, comparisons, characteristics, quotations, note-books.

(3) Especial study of the life of Milton and the effect of seventeenth century history upon his writing and upon literature in general. Library references.

(4) History of Literature—continued review and drill on periods. Especial study of history from the beginning of literature to the sixteenth century.

(5) Pedagogical study about five weeks. Outlines of reading adapted to primary and grammar school grades given and discussed.

A List of memory selections suitable for primary and grammar grades is given.

Illustrative presentations of selections for various grades are given by the teacher, especially of the poems of Wordsworth, Tennyson and Stevenson.

Preparation by every pupil of such presentations, and practice teaching given by many.

Various practical plans especially adapted to country schools are discussed.

Mounting of pictures for the school room is required from every pupil in the form of a chart, panel or calendar.

(e) Elocution: We introduce the subject of Elocution by giving brief talks on the ultimate aim of all education; helps to character building; the relation Elocution holds to other studies; the benefits to be derived from the study of Elocution by the pupil personally and by the pupil as a teacher.

Summary of Work

A. True Conception of Elocution.

1. Study.
2. Nature.
3. Man.
4. Fine Arts.

(a) Qualities common to all good Art: Truth, simplicity, unity, purity, directness, suggestiveness, repose, harmony, variety.

B. Impression.

1. Mind and Soul or Psychic Training.

(a) Development of character and cultivation of taste. Note: Of course, actual class training on these points is not possible; but we give suggestive talks.

(b) Cultivation of those faculties of the mind by which the correct impression is received.

Attention, concentration, imagination, logical faculty, sympathy. Note: This is where most of the work is done.

C. Expression.

1. Physical Training.

(a) Good air, good food, cleanliness.

(b) Correct dress.

(c) Physical exercise.

I. Out-door.

II. In-door. Practical work in the gymnasium.

2. Vocal Training.

- (a) Vocal exercise. Note: The voice may be trained from two standpoints, the mechanical and artistic. In the mechanical method the proper use of the respiratory muscles and vocal organs is reached through technical exercises as suggested by the summary. In the artistic method, the voice is trained to respond to the mind and feelings.

Lyrics, which the pupil can appreciate and enjoy and which express some joyous emotion as joy in nature or love of country, are best in developing tone-color. Later comes the practice of other emotions.

Correct breathing, relaxed throat, control of breath, forward placing of tone, articulation.

- (b) Vocal Music under supervision of musical instructor.

(Junior Year) On entering school, each pupil is examined with regard to breathing, use of voice and expression in reading. We strive to have the pupils get a true conception of what good reading is, and also to master a few of the simple steps in expression. In examination, the pupil reads a paragraph from a newspaper and recites a narrative poem. We read in class,—Whittier's "Child Life in Prose," "Child Life in Poetry," and other poems of a similar character.

(Middle Year) The development of the pupil's power of expression was of the first consideration in the Junior Year. Now we have the difficult task of preparing the pupil to teach others. We enlarge upon the work of the first year and in addition discuss simple ways of attaining desired results with pupils. We read selections from the Longfellow Leaflets and Snow Bound. Each pupil tells a short story and recites a lyric.

(Senior Year) We review and enlarge further on the various points taken up the preceding years. We consider problems in connection with teaching reading. The class is divided into sections, and one section has the opportunity, on certain days, of spending the lesson period consulting books on special points. This has been found very helpful, as we have the beginning of a fine library of reference books on reading.

We read Shakespeare's "As You Like It" or "A Merchant of Venice."

At the beginning of the term, scenes from Shakespeare are given, from which each pupil chooses one to prepare for the end of the term.

In the Junior and Middle Classes, we have a few simple talks on Art, using as examples, the copies of famous pictures and statues found in our own school building. The pupils illustrate their own art notes with Perry Pictures.

In the Senior Class we talk of the Artists of Barbizon and see their original work at the Walter's Art Gallery.

Mathematics

(a) Arithmetic: Arithmetic in the Junior Year from September to December inclusive, one period daily, includes percentage, commission, and brokerage, gain and loss, simple interest and the metric system, with analysis of problems. Students have Appleton's Numbers Applied as a reference book, but the actual work is dictated. Examples are written and solved on the board by students who then explain them to the class. Especial attention is called to accuracy in statements made on the board, and also to neatness of work and written explanations. One day in each week the work is handed in on paper, and the lesson period is occupied in having pupils at the board solve examples not previously given, in order to get as much individual work and work done under the eye of the teacher as possible. A note book is kept in which typical examples and notes are written for reference. In taking up new subjects, the inductive method is used and a rule formulated from examples worked. Subjects are grouped so as to make as far as possible a natural progression. This work is continued in the Middle Year from January to May. In both years the work is practical, and constant appeal is made to reason and not to rule. Arithmetic is completed in the Middle Year.

(b) Algebra: (Junior Year) In this course, addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, factoring, highest common factor and least common multiple, fractions and simple equations are taught. Students have no text-book. The Lecture Method is used and students are required to formulate original questions. A test is given about every two weeks and these papers are corrected by the teacher and returned to students. Text-books referred to are Wentworth's, and Fisher & Schwatt's.

(Middle Year) This course comprises a careful study of simple equations, involution, evolution, theory of exponents, inequalities, radicals, involution, imaginaries and quadratics.

Special attention is given to formulating original examples.

Text-book recommended—Fisher and Schwatt's Algebra, Wentworth's New School Algebra.

(c) Geometry. (Junior Year.) Two lessons a week are given in geometry during the Junior Year. Students have no text book. They are required to demonstrate theorems at the board to the class, or to write them in review. As far as possible the students give all explanations, and the inductive method is used.

(Senior Year) Amount covered—Six books of Phillips and Fisher's abridged edition with many of the original exercises and problems.

In the Senior class the work is pursued more rapidly. The pupil knowing how to use a text book is allowed one, and is required 1st, to demonstrate the proposition; 2nd, to answer satisfactorily all questions asked by the teacher or class; 3rd, to teach the same to the class.

It is required that the figures be large and neatly drawn, that all lettering be easily seen by every member of the class, that scientific and exact language be used, that the sequence of steps in the proof be logical, and that there be no unnecessary verbiage.

(d) Book-Keeping: The course in book-keeping is similar to, but not so extensive as that outlined by the Sadler-Rowe Company in their Commercial and Industrial Book-keeping. The lessons are not intended to produce specialists: this being the work of the Business College. The aim is rather to familiarize the pupils with the principles underlying journalizing and posting, with the necessary contents of business papers and to give them a fair amount of practice work in these subjects. Neatness, accuracy, promptness in recording, and careful attention to details are insisted upon.

Physical and Natural Science

(a) Physiology: The course in Physiology is completed in the first half of the Junior Year. It consists of lectures, illustrated by charts, models, and drawings, and of quizzes on reading assigned. The text-book in the hands of the students is Martin's Human Body. Students must be able to draw accurately and readily different parts of the body, and to explain the changes which the food undergoes in digestion and the blood in respiration, the direction of nerve-currents, etc.

(b) Chemistry: It is the purpose of this course to call the attention of the student to the phenomena of change that is constantly occurring in the world about them and to give them the key whereby they can unlock and understand many of the processes and changes of every day life.

The course is given by lectures, illustrated by carefully performed experiments. These the pupil must carefully follow and record their observations and inferences in their note-books.

The following is a synopsis of the work of last year,—Chemical and physical change; elements and compounds; mechanical mixtures; Law of Definite Proportions; atoms; molecules; symbols and formulas; chemical affinity; valence; manifestation of chemical action; aids to chemical action; chemical reaction; methods of separation.

A study of some of the common elements and their compounds,—oxygen; hydrogen; water; nitrogen; ammonia; the oxides of nitrogen; nitric acid; acids, bases and salts; the halogen acids and salts; carbon; marsh gas; olefiant gas; acetylene gas; coal and water gas; carbon mon-oxide; carbon di-oxide; sulphur; hydrogen sulphide; sulphur di-oxide; sulphuric acid; the atmosphere and its relation to life; flame; oxidation and reduction; chemical nomenclature; problems based on the Law of Definite Proportions.

(c) Physics: The course in Physics occupies one year. Special attention is given to the construction and use of simple and inexpensive apparatus.

The class work includes the subjects of Air, Liquids, Heat, Magnetism, and Electricity. From fifty to seventy-five experiments are performed by each student, permanent reports of each experiment being made. The objects of the experiments are to verify, not to discover laws; to develop care and skill in manipulation and accuracy of observation.

Gage's Physics forms the basis of the work.

Hammel's "Observation Blanks in Physics" is used for laboratory work.

(d) Mineralogy: A laboratory study, elective with Latin. The pupils become familiar with the characteristics of and the terms applied to minerals by handling and studying type specimens. The student determines and studies the characteristics of some thirty-five common minerals of economic importance. Their uses and the reasons why they are used are emphasized.

A study of the more useful industries connected with certain minerals, e. g., mining of coal, the manufacture of coal gas, lead pencils, salt, lime, the smelting of iron ores, etc., is carried along with the work. Austin's "Observation Blanks in Mineralogy" is the laboratory manual used by the student.

(e) Physical Geography: Text-books used,—Davis' "Physical Geography," Gilbert and Brigham's "Introduction to Physical Geography." The text is supplemented with lectures, illustrated with stereopticon, maps, globes, and sand table.

The storms of the "prevailing westerlies," weather-maps, forecasting; the inorganic agencies now at work upon the earth, their influence upon its structure and present surface appearance; the formation of soil; a general study of the surrounding region of the State, the kinds of rocks found, their origin and mode of formation receive special attention.

Field excursions for the study of the excellent local physiographic conditions, are made as frequently as possible.

(f) Geography: This course extends through the first half of the Middle Year. The following outlines the course as taught, etc.

(1),—Home Geography,—Taught by a series of elementary lessons given by the students under the direction of the teacher, by means of Nature, pictures, and sand-table; (2) North America;—as a typical continent; (3) The United States; (4) Maryland; (5) Europe and Asia,—a brief study, mainly by comparison with North America.

(6),—Map Drawing,—A small part of each lesson is given to rapid drawing of Outline Maps of the continents, showing the natural features which influence the distribution of climate, plants and animals.

(7),—Putty and Paste Maps, made by the students.

Tarr and McMurray's "North America" and "Europe and Asia;" Frye's, Redway's and Hinman's texts on the geography of Maryland form the basis of the work for this course.

(g) Botany: Taught in part by the laboratory method; in part by the lecture method. The aim of the work is to know the plant as a complete organism, living its own life in its own way. Hence life, function and adaptation is made primary, mere structure, secondary.

The following outlines the work: Seeds and germination; the organs of the plant—root, stem, leaves, hairs, buds; inflorescence; typical exogens and endogens; fruits; a few types of flowerless plants.

Field work for the purpose of instructing pupils how to collect, analyze, prepare and mount specimens, and to observe and study plants in their homes is done.

Each pupil is assigned a special topic for study and observation in the field, the work to be illustrated by the actual specimens observed, whenever practicable. The character of this work is indicated by such topics as these:

(1) How seeds travel. (2) How plants protect themselves. (3) Conditions requisite for germination. (4) Leaf veining. (5) Leaf shapes. (6) The history of the apple-tree branch, as told by itself, interpreted by the pupil. (7) Development of a blackberry from flower to fruit. (8) Development study of the germination of beans, corn, or peas. (9) How a pumpkin plantlet rids itself of its shell, and some one hundred other topics covering the entire field of botany.

Bailey's Botany is the basis of the work for this course.

(b) Zoology: The course in Zoology occupies sixteen weeks—three forty minute periods a week in the Senior Class—for those not taking Latin.

A study of type forms is made in the laboratory, and a note book with drawings and descriptions must be kept throughout the course. The method of study varies with the different animals. In most cases the living organism is studied, stress being laid on its activities and relation to environment. Field work is required. The compound microscope is used throughout the course. Library references in such form studies are substituted for text-book. The Agassiz Association consists of members of the Zoology Class and meets every week after school for special work in this department.

Other Subjects.

(a) Latin: (Junior Year). Chapters I-XXIX inclusive of Tuell and Fowler's "A First Book in Latin" forms the basis of the work for this year.

Forms learned,—five declensions of nouns, three declensions of adjectives, two conjugations of the indicative mood, comparison of adjectives and adverbs.

Construction learned,—two uses of the nominative case, two genitive, three of the dative, two of the accusative, the vocative, and twelve of the ablative; the adjective agreement, verb agreement, and the use of prepositions.

Class work,—memorizing of vocabularies, thorough drill on forms and constructions by black-board and oral recitation, almost daily written translations of English sentences in Latin in the exercise books. These sentences are corrected by the teacher, returned and rewritten. All rules of syntax violated are written in full with the corrected sentences. Tests are given every month.

(Middle Year). Tuell and Fowler's "A First Book in Latin" is completed. Forms and constructions sufficient for the reading of Caesar are learned. The other work of this year is a continuation of the Junior Year work.

(Senior Year). Greenough, D'ooge and Daniell's "Second Year Latin" is the text used.

The Amount read varies, it will eventually be the equivalent of three books of Caesar.

The study of constructions, especially of subjunctive, infinitive, and indirect discourse is continued.

Latin Prose,—averages one exercise a week—the sentences being based on the text selected from Daniell's Latin Prose and others.

Virgil,—A few advanced pupils are given extra work in translating and scanning a part of the first book of Virgil.

(b) Physical Training:

SWEDISH SYSTEM.

A. Practical Work

Free standing exercises and apparatus work in gymnasium.

B. Theory

(a) Theory of Swedish System

(b) Comparison of Swedish with other Systems.

2. Study

Essays are prepared in the Senior Class on such subjects as Physical Training in the Country Schools; Physical Training in Primary Schools; Habitual Posture of School Children; Plays, Games, etc., for Physical Development, etc.

(c) Drawing: (1) Form Study—outline drawing from type solids and familiar objects based on type solids, clay modeling; (2) Light and Shade—drawing in charcoal from still life; (3) Composition—practice with different media (lead pencil, brush work, crayon, etc.); (4) Color study with water colors.

Consideration is also given to historic styles of architecture and ornament, plant form and its adaptation in decoration, and to outdoor sketching.

(d) Music: Elementary theory; the writing of musical exercises; drill from the music chart; thorough training in chorus singing.

(e) Manual Training: The aim of the Manual Training course is to make the pupil systematic and thorough in his work, to train his judgment and executive faculty and to better fit him to meet the practical side of life.

In the Middle and Senior Years, especial attention is given to the teaching of methods employed in directing the teaching of Manual Training in the schools of the state.

Junior Year,—Paper Folding and Cardboard Construction—15 models in Paper Folding, 20 models in Cardboard Construction.

Middle Year,—An Elementary Course in Knife Work.

Senior Year,—An advanced Course in Knife-work; also advanced work in Sloyd, using various wood-working tools.

(f) Sewing.—In this course, the ladies are taught how to hem, patch, darn, work button holes, etc.; how to draft, cut and make undergarments; how to take the measure, draft the patterns, cut, fit and make dresses.

Persons desiring to enter the School should make application to the Board of School Commissioners of their respective counties, or to the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore. The law requires the appointees to be selected by the several Boards of County School Commissioners, and the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore, from among persons having "the necessary scholastic qualifications, viz.: scholarship equal to graduations from approved High Schools for the Normal Course; and scholarship equal to completion satisfactorily of the seventh year grade of our public school curriculum for the Academic Course," the evidence of which shall be the certificate of the County Superintendent or City Superintendent to that effect.

Applicants for the Normal Course must be not less than sixteen years of age, if young women, and not less than seventeen, if young men, and must "file a written declaration that their object in obtaining admission is to qualify themselves as Public School Teachers, and that it is their intention to engage in the profession of teaching within the State."* Male applicants for admission to the Academic Course shall be at least sixteen years of age, and female applicants shall be fifteen years of age.

When the legal quota from any county or the City of Baltimore is filled, applicants from the county or from Baltimore City should address the Principal, enclosing a certificate of scholastic qualifications and a letter of recommendation from the last teacher of the applicant, the County Superintendent or from the City Superintendent.

Students who are under age, or deficient in scholarship, can enter a Preparatory Class on paying the tuition fees.

CLASSIFICATIONS.

Students will be examined on entrance in order to ascertain the proper class to which they should be assigned. Provided, however, that in accordance with the State By-Laws, adopted by the State Board of Education, graduates of such High Schools of this State as may be endorsed for the purpose by the State Superintendent, shall, when appointed to free scholarships in the Maryland State Normal School by the several School Boards of the State, be admitted, without examination, to the Junior Class of said school.

Admission to the lower class will require that the candidate should be able to read fluently, spell correctly, write legibly and rapidly, and pass a satisfactory examination also in Arithmetic, Geography, History of Maryland, and History of the United States, English Grammar and Physiology. Young persons who have not received a good primary education should not expect to obtain it at this school, under the claim that they are training for teachers; but all due allowance will be made for earnest and diligent students who will exert themselves to obtain a good standing during the first term of probation. No student will be allowed to enter an advanced class until all the work required in the lower classes has been performed satisfactorily, except as provided in the above State By-Law.

*If there be not applicants sufficient from any county or the City of Baltimore, then the State Board of Education may fill all vacancies by selecting applicants possessing the requisite qualifications, from any other portion of the State, in the proportion aforesaid.

DIPLOMAS AND CERTIFICATES.

Inquiries are often made regarding the length of time required to complete the course. It is impossible to give a definite answer to this question. The examination for diplomas is open to all students in good standing who have been at the School for two years. Experience shows that while some students have graduated in two years, the majority require three years. Students differ very greatly, both in natural ability and acquired preparation. It is not expected that all shall make equal advancement in equal times. To fail to pass an examination is of itself no disgrace. The disgrace lies in the want of due diligence; or, still more, in the desire to seem to be that which one is not.

The main object of the school is to give professional training to those who intend to become teachers, and all the departments of study are considered as means to this end. But the general course is well adapted to those who have no professional object in view, and wish merely to obtain a thorough and liberal education. Temporary certificates will be given to students who complete satisfactorily the studies required by law; but the permanent diploma of the school which authorizes the holder to teach in any public school in the State, is not given until after one year's successful experience as a teacher.

SESSIONS.

The school year of nine months is divided into two sessions. The Fall Session of 1905-1906 commences on Wednesday, September 13. The Winter Session commences on the first Wednesday in January and closes on the second Thursday in June.

Students will be admitted to entrance in the first week of the Fall and Winter Sessions, and not at any other time, unless previous arrangements have been made with the Principal to that effect.

New students must be present on Wednesday, September 13, and former students, desiring a re-examination in Physics, Physical Geography and Book-keeping, for promotion, must also be present on Wednesday, September 13.

EXPENSES.

Students appointed by the County School Boards, or by the Baltimore City Board, are under no expense for tuition; and the use of text-books is given to all students free of cost; provided, a deposit of $5.00 is required from every student, upon entrance, as a guarantee of good care and prompt return of text-books. This deposit will be returned to students upon their leaving school finally, after deduction for loss or damage, if any, of books they have used.

In addition to the regular appointees, there will be received, as required by law, a limited number of students of the proper age and scholastic acquirements, who shall pay twenty-five dollars per session for tuition—each half-yearly session in advance. Such students are not required to become teachers.

BOARDING.

Boarding can be obtained in the immediate neighborhood of the school at prices varying from $3.00 to $4.00 a week. The boarding-houses selected by students must be approved by the Principal before the students are admitted.

Students who have no acquaintances in the city should make early application to the Principal, who will see that they obtain suitable accommodations.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The course of instruction extends through four years. Candidates for admission may enter the Second Year Class on passing an examination on the studies of the first year; and the Third Year (Junior) Class on passing an examination on the studies of the first and second years, except as provided in State By-Laws as mentioned.

Observation of actual teaching in both Normal and Model Schools, with notes and written reports thereon, is required of the Junior and Senior Classes.

SINGING AND DRAWING are taught in every class; also Sewing (to women) and the use of Woodworking Tools, to all students.

All students study Latin during the first year. It becomes elective at the beginning of the second year; and students who elect Latin must continue its study throughout the remaining course.

GENERAL PLAN OF THE COURSES.

Science and the Art of Teaching.

(a) Psychology: The "Elements of Psychology," by Compayré, is the text-book used, and class lectures are given suggesting the application of the principles therein stated in actual teaching. The principal standard writers upon the subject have been consulted, and attention is called to an excellent collection of the best authors upon the subject in the school library.

(b) Pedagogy: Lessons in Pedagogy extend through two years and are arranged thus:

Junior Year. Principles underlying educational methods; primary instruction; subjects taught, their aim, presentation, sequence.

(a) Theory and practice are combined in lessons for primary classes; principles underlying all true teaching are emphasized; means of securing the attention of the pupils and the power to keep them busy are dwelt upon; special attention to the dispositions, the habits of children that come under the student's own observation is advised; the making of schedules in conformity with the requirements of the several grades is practiced. (b) The life-period of a nation, its civilization, progress, laws, customs, are compared with its means and limitations in educating its people and the value attached by it to education. Inspiration is gained through studying the life of the earnest and successful teacher, while a knowledge of the principles underlying his teaching is sought.

Senior Year. Instruction in this year embraces a knowledge of the laws governing physical, moral and mental growth; effect of environment; discipline; practice lessons in elementary studies; criticisms upon the same; the encouragement of individual method rather than imitation; the art of questioning so as to stimulate and to secure the end sought for; æsthetics in the school room; organization, classification.

In all recitations the student is required to obtain not only a thorough knowledge of the subject-matter for herself, but how to teach that subject to another, adapting her presentation to the special requirements of the individual mind.

(c) Students are required each year to observe in the Model School where they see illustrated principles and methods taught them in the Normal department. They are taught to trace here effect back to cause, to note the processes of the development on the subject in the minds of the several children, and to form their own laws for the same; to study closely the relationship existing between pupil and teacher, the influence of the teacher upon the mind and habits of the pupil, and the cause of this influence, etc., in a conference, held weekly, conducted by the teacher in charge of this department.

(d) School Law: The text of the School Laws of the State, and of the By-Laws, Rules and Regulations of the Public Schools of the State are studied, and their application in Baltimore City and in the counties.

HISTORY AND CIVICS.

(a) History: History embraces the history of the United States, Europe, and Ancient History. Students have use of text-books, but teaching is done chiefly by lecture. A question box, pictures, maps and charts are used as helps. Outside work required varies from year to year, as does the method of taking up the work. Some years students are required to copy and illustrate by maps and pictures their notes on the lectures; in others, principal events in each country are written in parallel columns, pictures and maps being arranged at the end of each century; in others, students answer in writing once a week one review question, and hand in one theme on a subject assigned, with a scrap-book containing bits of history, pictures, etc.; in still others four themes are required, one on a subject from each century.

As to the order of taking up the history, some years' events are taken contemporaneously; in other years each country is considered separately. The greatest emphasis is always laid on sequence of events, great movements, the evolution from class rights to those of the individual, from feudalism to self-government.

(b) Constitution of the United States: The germs of the written Constitution in history; its antecedents in England, especially the "Magna Charta" and the "Bill of Rights;" the proposal by Franklin of a union of the British Colonies in America; the adoption of the "Articles of Confederation;" the Constitutional Convention of 1797 and the ratification of the Constitution are discussed in class lectures, of which students are required to take notes. The text of the Constitution and of its amendments, and the application thereof in the government of the United States are then studied.

(c) Constitution of Maryland: The establishment and development of the government in Maryland is taught by class lectures, of which notes are made by the students. In the preparation of the lectures all the standard histories of the Colony and of the State have been consulted, especially those of Dr. William Hand Browne, Col. J. Thomas Scharf, the publications of the Maryland Historical Society, and of the Johns Hopkins University. A careful study has also been made of the original documents, viz.: The instructions of Cecilius Calvert to Leonard Calvert previous to the sailing of "The Ark" and "The Dove;" the Charter of Maryland; each of the Constitutions of the State, and the Amendments adopted.

The text of the present Constitution and its application in the government of the State is then studied.

WORK IN ENGLISH.

(a) English and Composition: In composition the lessons are not usually assigned, but the students are drilled in the use of such words as are commonly used incorrectly. This is done by original sentences, given by pupils, containing the word or by mimeographed sentences with blanks to be filled.

Students are required to give oral descriptions of persons, places, etc., and to reproduce stories. Spelling lessons, including the analysis of words, the writing of diacritical marks and the sounds of letters are given.

The work in English Composition consists of (1) Written and Oral Observations. (2) Daily themes—through which are taught Punctuation, Capitalization, Words, Sentences, Paragraphs. (3) Fortnightly themes—descriptive, narrative, etc. (4) Written reviews of such books as “Ramona,” “The Last of the Mohicans,” “The House of the Seven Gables,” “My Lady Rotha,” “When Knighthood Was in Flower,” “To Have and To Hold,” etc. (5) Letter Writing: Business Letters, Social Notes, Friendly Letters.

(b) English Grammar: The work during the first year consists of a thorough study of the different parts of speech, syntax, analysis, parsing.

During the second year, the work includes a review of the study of the inflexions; more difficult syntax or constructions; and more advanced analysis and parsing.

Pupils receive their instruction in the above courses mainly from the teacher.

Lockwood’s “Lessons in English” and Buehler’s “Modern English Grammar,” are put into the hands of every pupil, and the texts of Meiklejohn, Maxwell, etc., are used for reference.

In the Junior Year, grammar includes the analysis of difficult constructions, examples of case, mood, and tense forms, the grammatical and historical relation of words to one another, the changed meaning of words, their derivation, synonyms, correction of false syntax, paragraphs, punctuation, versification, figures of speech, composition, distinctness of style. As facility of expression is best acquired through expression, much practice in composition is given not only in this but in other studies.

In English, Meiklejohn's "English Language" is closely adhered to as the text-book. Collateral matter is also taken from Fowler's "Large Grammar," Lounsbury's "English Language," Whitney's "Language and the Study of Language," and Morris' "English Accidence."

(c) History of the English Language: Language in general is touched upon, as well as the family of languages, and the group to which English belongs. The history of our language is carefully and fully traced from its dialectic form in the lowlands of Germany to its present composite condition.

(d) Literature: (First and Second Years.) American Literature. (1) The following selections from American authors are read in class:—Irving's "Sketch Book;" Hawthorne's "Tales of the White Hills;" Longfellow's "Evangeline;" "The Courtship of Miles Standish," and shorter poems; Lowell's "The Vision of Sir Launfal," and Bryant's "Thanatopsis."

The following suggests the character of the home reading done during the year: Hawthorne's "The House of the Seven Gables," "Tanglewood Tales" and "Wonder Book;" Irving's "Tales of a Traveller" or "Alhambra;" Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans;" Longfellow's "Hiawatha," and Whittier's "Snow-bound."

(2) Study based on the reading—Figures of speech, making of outlines, use and kinds of words, sentences and paragraphs, comparison of prose and poetry, study of versification—verse, stanza, meter, foot, rhyme, rhythm, etc., word pictures, inductive study of the characteristics of the author, with proofs by quotations from the text.

(3) Suggestive topics assigned for oral recitations and for essays.

(4) Quotations memorized from all selections read in class, and illustrated note-book carefully prepared.

(5) Life of every author and critical library references studied after the careful study of the text.

(6) History of American Literature—Outline of history in three periods with sub-divisions and chief writers memorized. Lectures on amount and kinds of writing at different periods with causes, tendencies and comparison of writers. Use of class charts and outlines.

(7) Celebration of birthdays of American authors. Large calendar kept with picture of author placed on the date of his birthday, talks and quotations prepared voluntarily by pupils.

(Junior Year). English Literature. (1) The following selections are read in class: Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," "Julius Cæsar;" Pope's "Translation of Homer's Iliad;" Addison's "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers;" to be read at home—Shakespeare's "Macbeth" and "As You Like It;" Carlyle's "Essay on Burns;" Scott's "Ivanhoe" or "Kenilworth;" Eliot's "Silas Marner," and Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield."

(2) Study based on reading—Drama; plot—outlining by scenes, statement of theme, comparative importance in every act, climax, catastrophe, etc.; characters—inductive study by reference, quotations and comparisons; search questions assigned, answered and discussed. Comparison of novel and drama; outlining of essays; study of poetical forms; figures of speech, etc.

(3) Suggestive topics and essays.

(4) Quotations and note-books.

(5) Lives of authors and library references, after class study of their works.

(6) History of English Literature. Outline of history in eight periods with chief authors memorized. Study of rulers in England and chief events of history of every period and their effect on literature. Lectures and chart drills on tendencies of periods to poetry or prose, with causes, comparisons of periods and writers. Various summaries and outlines. Especial attention is given to periods from the sixteenth century to the present time.

(7) Celebration of the birthdays of English authors.

(Senior Year). English Literature. (1) Selections read in class—Milton's "Paradise Lost" (Books I and II), or minor poems; read at home—Macaulay's "Essay on Addison," or "Essay on Milton," Tennyson's shorter poems, Wordsworth's shorter poems.

(2) A study of outlines, figures of speech, comparisons, characteristics, quotations, note-books.

(3) Especial study of the life of Milton and the effect of seventeenth century history upon his writing and upon literature in general. Library references.

(4) History of Literature—continued review and drill on periods. Especial study of history from the beginning of literature to the sixteenth century.

A list of memory selections suitable for primary and grammar grades is given.

Illustrative presentation of selections for various grades are given by the teacher, especially of the poems of Wordsworth, Tennyson and Stevenson.

Preparation by every pupil of such presentations, and practice teaching given by many.

Various practical plans especially adapted to country schools are discussed.

Mounting of pictures for the school rooms is required from every pupil in the form of a chart, panel or calendar.

(e) Elocution: We introduce the subject of Elocution by giving brief talks on the ultimate aim of all education; helps to character building; the relation Elocution holds to other studies; the benefits to be derived from the study of Elocution by the pupil personally, and by the pupil as a teacher.

Summary of Work.

A. True Conception of Elocution.

Study—

1. Nature.
2. Man.
3. Fine Arts.

(a) Qualities common to all good art. Truth, simplicity, unity, purity, directness, suggestiveness, repose, harmony, variety.

B. Impression.

1. Mind and Soul or Psychic Training.

(a) Development of character and cultivation of taste.

(b) Cultivation of those faculties of the mind by which the correct impression is received.

Attention, concentration, imagination, logical faculty, sympathy.

C. Expression.

1. Physical Training.

(a) Good air, good food, cleanliness.

(b) Correct dress.

(c) Physical exercise.

I. Out-door.

II. In-door. Practical work in the Gymnasium.

2. Vocal training.

(a) Vocal exercise. (Correct breathing, relaxed throat, control of breath, forward-placing of tone, articulation.)

(b) Develop tone-color. Note: Read Lyrics which express joyous emotion—joy in nature or love of country. Later comes the practice of other emotions.

(First and Second Years.) On entering school, each pupil is examined with regard to breathing, use of voice and expression in reading. We strive to have the pupils get a true conception of what good reading is, and also to master a few of the simple steps in expression. In examination, the pupil reads a paragraph from a newspaper and recites a narrative poem. We read in class—Whittier's "Child Life in Prose," "Child Life in Poetry," and other poems of a similar character.

(Junior Year.) The development of the pupil's power of expression was of the first consideration in the previous years. Now we have the difficult task of preparing the pupil to teach others. We enlarge upon the work of the second year and in addition discuss simple ways of attaining desired results with pupils. We read selections from the Longfellow Leaflets and Snow Bound. Every pupil tells a short story and recites a lyric.

(Senior Year.) We review and enlarge further on the various points taken up the preceding years. We consider problems in connection with teaching reading. The class is divided into sections, and one section has the opportunity, on certain days, of spending the lesson period consulting books on special points. This has been found very helpful, as we have the beginning of a fine library of reference books on reading.

At the beginning of the term, a list of scenes from Shakespeare are given, from which each pupil chooses one to prepare for the end of the term.

We have a few simple talks on Art, using as examples the copies of famous pictures, casts, and statues found in our own school building. The pupils illustrate their own art notes with Perry Pictures.

In the Senior Class we talk of the Artists of Barbizon and see their original work at the Walters' Art Gallery.

MATHEMATICS.

(a) Arithmetic. Arithmetic in the first year, one period daily, includes percentage, commission and brokerage, gain and loss, simple interest and the metric system, with analysis of problems. Students have Appleton's Numbers Applied as a reference book, but the actual work is dictated. Examples are written and solved on the board by students, who then explain them to the class. Especial attention is called to accuracy in statements made on the board, and also to neatness of work and written explanations. One day in each week the work is handed in on paper, and the lesson period is occupied in having pupils at the board solve examples not previously given, in order to get as much individual work and work done under the eye of the teacher as is possible. A note-book is kept in which typical examples and notes are written for reference. In taking up new subjects, the inductive method is used and a rule formulated from examples worked. Subjects are grouped to make a natural progression. This work is continued in the second year from January to May. In both years the work is practical; constant appeal is made to reason and not to rule. Arithmetic is completed in the second year.

(b) Algebra. (First Year.) In this course, addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, factoring, highest common factor and least common multiple, fractions and simple equations are taught. Students are required to formulate original questions. A test is given about every two weeks and these papers are corrected by the teacher and returned to students. Text-books referred to are Wentworth's, and Fisher & Schwatt's.

(Second Year.) This course comprises a careful study of simple equations, involution, evolution, theory of exponents, inequalities, radicals, quadratics and the binomial theorem.

Special attention is given to formulating original examples.

Text-books recommended—Fisher & Schwatt's Algebra, Wentworth's New School Algebra.

(c) Geometry. (Second Year.) Three lessons a week are given in geometry during the second year. Students have no text-book. They are required to demonstrate theorems to the class, or to write them in review. As far as possible the students give all explanations, and the inductive method is used.

(Junior and Senior Years.) Amount covered—Six books of Phillips & Fisher's abridged edition with many of the original exercises and problems.

In the Senior Class the work is pursued more rapidly. The pupil knowing how to use a text-book is allowed one, and is required, 1st, to demonstrate the proposition; 2d, to answer satisfactorily all questions asked by the teacher or class; 3d, to teach the same to the class.

It is required that the figures be large and neatly drawn, that all lettering be easily seen by every member of the class, that scientific and exact language is used, that the sequence of steps in the proof be logical, and that there be no unnecessary verbiage.

(d) Book-keeping. The course in book-keeping is similar to, but not so extensive, as that outlined by the Sadler-Rowe Company in their Commercial and Industrial Book-keeping. The lessons are not intended to produce specialists: this being the work of the Business College. The aim is rather to familiarize the pupils with the principles underlying journalizing and posting, with the necessary contents of business papers, and to give them a fair amount of practice work in these subjects. Neatness, accuracy, promptness in recording and careful attention to details are insisted upon.

PHYSICAL AND NATURAL SCIENCE.

(a) Physiology: The course in Physiology is completed in the first half of the first year. It consists of lectures, illustrated by charts, models, and drawings, and of quizzes on reading assigned. The text-book in the hands of the students is Martin's "Human Body." Students must be able to draw accurately and readily different parts of the body, and to explain the changes which the food undergoes in digestion and the blood in respiration, the direction of nerve-currents, etc.

(b) Chemistry: It is the purpose of this course to call the attention of the students to phenomena of change that is constantly occurring in the world about us and to give them the key whereby they can unlock and understand many of the processes and changes of everyday life.

The course is given by lectures illustrated by carefully performed experiments. These the pupils must carefully follow and record their observations and inferences in their note-books.

The following is a synopsis of the work of last year—Chemical and physical change; elements and compounds; mechanical mixtures; Law of Definite Proportions; atoms; molecules; symbols and formulas; chemical affinity; valence; manifestation of chemical actions; aids to chemical action; chemical reaction; methods of separation.

A study of some of the common elements and their compounds—oxygen; hydrogen; water; nitrogen; ammonia; the oxides of nitrogen; nitric acid; acids; bases and salts; the halogen acids and salts; carbon; marsh gas; olefiant gas; acetylene gas; coal and water gas; carbon mon-oxide; carbon di-oxide; sulphur; hydrogen sulphide; sulphur di-oxide; sulphuric acid; the atmosphere and its relation to life; flame; oxidation and reduction; chemical nomenclature; problems based on the Law of Definite Proportions.

(c) Physics: The course in Physics occupies one year. Special attention is given to the construction and use of simple and inexpensive apparatus.

The class work includes the subjects of Air, Liquids, Heat, Magnetism and Electricity. Experiments are performed by each student, permanent reports of each experiment being made. The objects of the experiments are to verify, not to discover laws; to develop care and skill and manipulation and accuracy of observation.

Gage's Physics form the basis of the work.

(d) Mineralogy: A laboratory study. The pupils become familiar with the characteristics of and the terms applied to minerals by handling and studying type specimens. The student determines and studies the characteristics of some thirty-five common minerals of economic importance. Their uses, and reasons why they are used are emphasized.

A study of the more useful industries connected with certain minerals, e. g., mining of coal, the manufacture of coal gas, lead pencils, salt, lime, the smelting of iron ores, etc. is carried along with the work. Austin's "Observation Blanks in Mineralogy" is the laboratory manual used by the student.

(e) Physical Geography: Text-books used—Davis' "Physical Geography," Gilbert & Brigham's "Introduction to Physical Geography." The text is supplemented with lectures, illustrated with stereopticon, maps, globes, and sand table.

The storms of the "prevailing westerlies," weather maps, forecasting; the inorganic agencies now at work upon the earth, their influence upon its structure and present surface appearance; the formation of soil; a general study of the surrounding region of the State, the kinds of rocks found, their origin and mode of formation receive special attention.

Field excursions for the study of the excellent local physiographic conditions are made as frequently as possible.

(f) Geography: This course is pursued in the First and Second Years. The following outlines the course as taught, etc.:

(1) Home Geography—Taught by a series of elementary lessons given by the students under the direction of the teacher, by means of Nature, pictures, and sand

table; (2) North America—as a typical continent; (3) The United States; (4) Maryland; (5) Europe and Asia --a brief study, mainly by comparison with North America.

(6) Map Drawing—A small part of each lesson is given to rapid drawing of Outline Maps of the continents, showing the natural features which influence the distribution of climate, plants and animals.

(7) Putty and Paste Maps made by the students.

Tarr and McMurry's "North America," and "Europe and Asia;" Frye's, Redway's and Hinman's texts on the geography of Maryland form the basis of the work for this course.

(g) Botany: Taught in part by the laboratory method; in part by the lecture method. The aim of the work is to know the plant as a complete organism, living its own life in its own way. Hence life, function and adaption is made primary; mere structure, secondary.

The following outlines the work: Seeds and germination; the organs of the plant—root, stem, leaves, hairs, buds; inflorescence; typical exogens and endogens; fruits, a few types of flowerless plants.

Field work for the purpose of instructing pupils how to collect, analyze, prepare and mount specimens, and to observe and study plants in their homes is done.

Each pupil is assigned a special topic for study and observation in the field, the work to be illustrated by the actual specimens observed, whenever practicable. The character of this work is indicated by such topics as these:

(1) How seeds travel. (2) How plants protect themselves. (3) Conditions requisite for germination. (4) Leaf veining. (5) Leaf shapes. (6) The history of the apple tree branch, as told by itself, interpreted by the pupil. (7) Developments of a blackberry from flower to fruit. (8) Development study of the germination of beans, corn or peas. (9) How a pumpkin plantlet rids itself of its shell, and some one hundred other topics covering the entire field of botany.

Bailey's Botany is the basis of the work for this course.

OTHER SUBJECTS.

(a) Latin: (First Year.) Chapters I-XXIX, inclusive, of Tuell and Fowler's "A First Book in Latin" forms the basis of the work for this year.

Forms learned—five declensions of nouns, three declensions of adjectives, two conjugations of the indicative mood, comparisons of adjectives and adverbs.

Construction learned—two uses of the nominative case, two genitive, three of the dative, two of the accusative, the vocative, and twelve of the ablative; the adjective agreement, verb agreement, and the use of prepositions.

Class work—memorizing of vocabularies, thorough drill on forms and constructions by blackboard and oral recitation, almost daily written translation of English sentences in Latin in the exercise books. These sentences are corrected by the teacher, returned and rewritten. All rules of syntax violated are written in full with the corrected sentences. Tests are given every month.

(Second Year.) Tuell and Fowler's "A First Book in Latin" is completed. Forms and constructions sufficient for the reading of Cæsar are learned. The other work of this year is a continuation of the first year work.

The amount read varies; it will eventually be the equivalent of three books of Cæsar.

The study of constructions, especially of subjunctive, infinitive and indirect discourse is continued.

Latin Prose—averages one exercise a week—the sentences being based on the text selected from Daniell's "Latin Prose" and others.

(Senior Year.) Cicero's Orations, and Translating and Scanning Virgil's Æneid.

(b) Physical Training:

SWEDISH SYSTEM.

A. Practical Work.

(a) Theory of Swedish System.

(b) Comparison of Swedish with other Systems.

2. Study.

(a) Baron Posse's Hand Book.

Essays are prepared in the Senior Class on such subjects as Physical Training in the County Schools; Physical Training in Primary Schools; Habitual Posture of School Children; Plays, Games, etc., for Physical Development, etc.

(c) Drawing: (1) Form Study—outline drawing from type solids and familiar objects based on type solids, clay modeling; (2) Light and Shade—Drawing in charcoal from still life; (3) Composition—practice with different media (lead pencil, brush work, crayon, etc.); (4) Color study with water colors.

Consideration is also given to historic styles of architecture and ornament, plant form and its adaptation in decoration, and to out-door sketching.

(d) Music: Elementary theory; the writing of musical exercises; drill from the music chart; thorough training in chorus singing.

(e) Manual Training: The aim of the Manual Training course is to make the pupil systematic and thorough in his work, to train his judgment and executive faculty and to better fit him to meet the practical side of life.

In the Junior and Senior Years especial attention is given to the teaching of methods employed in directing the teaching of Manual Training in the schools of the State.

First Year—Paper Folding and Cardboard Construction—15 models in Paper Folding, 20 models in Cardboard Construction.

Second Year—An Elementary Course in Knife-work.

Junior and Senior Years—An Advanced Course in Knife-work; also advanced work in Sloyd, using various wood-working tools.

(f) Sewing—In this course the ladies are taught how to hem, patch, darn, work button-holes, etc.; how to cut and make undergarments.

MARYLAND STATE NORMAL SCHOOL

BALTIMORE

LOCATION.

Situated in Baltimore City, the metropolis of Maryland and of the South, the Maryland State Normal School may be easily and quickly reached from almost every part of the State at very slight expense.

The school building is a large and handsome structure on the northwest corner of Lafayette and Carrollton avenues. It is in one of the best residential sections of the city. Directly in front is Lafayette Square, one of the most beautiful of Baltimore's many public squares; Druid Hill Park, one of the finest parks in any city of the United States, is only seven minutes distant by trolley which passes the door; the general surroundings are, therefore, as nearly ideal as they could be in the heart of a great city.

HISTORY.

The Maryland State Normal School was established by the School Law of 1865. It was opened to students January 15, 1866, with Professor M. A. Newell as Principal. Re-organized in 1868, and the present building first occupied in 1876, this school has from its foundation to the present day been devoted to the "instruction and practice of Teachers in the science of education, the art of teaching, and the mode of governing schools."

For thirty-six years this was the only Normal School in the State of Maryland. It has graduated nearly two thousand students, while it has enrolled, in all, perhaps twice that number. It is thus enabled to offer prospective students the venerable traditions and helpful influence of forty years of actual operation as a training school for teachers.

LIBRARY FACILITIES.

The Normal School Library.

This library contains four or five thousand volumes to which are continually being added current and other books of greatest interest to teachers.

Magazines and Periodicals.

Periodical literature is well represented. In the reading room are found the leading literary magazines, and numerous other high-class periodicals both professional and literary. The value of this department of the library can scarcely be overestimated, and its interest for teacher and student alike is as great as its value.

The Pratt Free Library.

The Pratt Free Library places its hundreds of thousands of volumes on every conceivable subject almost as completely at the service of the school as if it were the school library. The Library's admirable system of "students' cards" enables a student to keep one book four weeks, while on another card, the ordinary "borrower's card," a second book may, if needed, be held for two weeks.

One branch of this Library is within five minutes' walk of the Normal School. Any book catalogued in the entire Library may be taken out at this branch. For books not on hand notice must be given, but the branch has a large collection of educational works on its shelves, and the Library attendants are particularly courteous and helpful to students, sparing no pains to aid them.

PUBLIC SCHOOL ANNIVERSARIES.

Annually Washington's Birthday, Maryland Day, and Arbor and Bird Day are celebrated with appropriate exercises by the whole school.

Maryland Day.

Dr. Bernard C. Steiner, Librarian of the Pratt Free Library and Professor of History in the Johns Hopkins University, delivered the principal address at the celebration of Maryland Day, 1906. His theme was "Maryland and the West."

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS.

Literary Societies.

There are two literary societies in the school, the Normal and the Pestalozzi, to one of which every student is expected to belong. The regular meetings of these societies afford opportunity for experience in debate, elocution, oratory, the conduct of business in public meetings, and in the application of and obedience to parliamentary rules.

Young Women's Christian Association.

There is a branch of the Y. W. C. A. in the School in which membership is of course entirely voluntary. Regular meetings, very helpful to those who take part, are maintained.

Young Women's Christian Temperance Union.

A branch of the "Y" has for years existed in the school. Membership is entirely voluntary, and meetings are held at the call of the President.

PREPARATION FOR TEACHING.

Teaching is not only an art; it is one of the most difficult and exacting of all arts. It has long been a commonplace in words that knowledge is one thing while teaching is quite another thing. Have the deeds of school authorities always kept pace with their words on this point? Workers in any art must make a beginning, but in every art except teaching it seems to be an axiom that the very best material alone is worth putting through this experimental stage. In teaching, school authorities seem too often willing to bear with beginners through a trying experimental stage without ever stopping to inquire whether, when thus "trained," the teacher in question, because of the lack of liberal culture and the consequent lack of the powers of adaptation, analysis and combination, can ever develop into the influential teacher so ardently hoped for. With the normal school facilities now provided this should no longer be necessary in Maryland. The future efficiency of the elementary schools, as well as the future of the individuals concerned, should not be heavily handicapped by the employment of high school graduates,—except where necessary,—before they have enjoyed the essentially broadening and ripening general culture to be gained through the two years of study and special preparation offered by the Maryland State Normal School, Baltimore.

TO THE HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE.

The temptation to begin teaching without further preparation is great. DON'T DO IT. Ever louder becomes the cry for broader culture on the part of those who are to assume the responsibilities of training the young of our State for future usefulness and happiness. Broaden your minds and enrich your experience by catching something of the thought and experience of the leaders of our race in all ages.

ADMISSION.

Baltimore City and each county is entitled to send two students for each of its representatives in the General Assembly.

The apportionment is as follows:

Allegany County, 12; Anne Arundel County, 10; Baltimore County, 14; Baltimore City, 56; Calvert County, 6; Caroline County, 6; Carroll County, 10; Cecil County, 8; Charles County, 6; Dorchester County, 10; Frederick County, 12; Garrett County, 6; Harford County, 10; Howard County, 6; Kent County, 6; Montgomery County, 10; Prince George's County, 10; Queen Anne's County, 8; St. Mary's County, 6; Somerset County, 8; Talbot County, 8; Washington County, 12; Wicomico County, 8; Worcester County, 8.

Persons desiring to enter the school should make application to the Board of School Commissioners of their respective counties, or to the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore. The law requires the appointees to be selected by the several Boards of County School Commissioners, and the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore.

Satisfactory completion of the eighth grade of the public schools, certified in writing by the teacher under whom the work was done, entitles to entrance into the Freshman Class without examination. An examination will be held at the opening of school for those who cannot in any other satisfactory manner show that they are prepared to do, with profit to themselves and credit to the school, the work of the Freshman Class.

Those who wish to enter the Sophomore Class must show that they have completed work at least equivalent to that of the Freshman Year.

Graduates of approved High Schools are admitted without examination to the Junior Class.

Students who are under fifteen (females), or sixteen (males), years of age, or are deficient in scholarship, will be provided for in the Model School without any other payments than those which would have been required had they succeeded in entering the Normal School proper.

DIPLOMAS AND CERTIFICATES.

The main object of the school is to give professional training to those who intend to become teachers, and all the departments of study are considered as means to this end. But the general course is well adapted to those who have no professional object in view, and wish merely to obtain a liberal education.

Those who complete to the satisfaction of the Faculty the courses required for graduation receive the diploma of the school. After two years, one of which shall have been spent in actual teaching, if the County Superintendent under whom the teaching was done so recommends in writing, the Secretary of the State Board of Education will, with the approval of the Board, affix the seal making the diploma in effect a Life Certificate.

EXPENSES.

Students appointed by the County School Boards, or by the Baltimore City Board, are under no expense for tuition. The use of text-books is given to all students free of cost, but a deposit of five dollars is required from every student, upon entrance, as a guarantee of good care and prompt return of text-books. This deposit will be returned to students upon final withdrawal from school, after deduction for loss, damage, or any arrearage to the school.

In addition to the regular appointees, there will be received, as required by law, a limited number of students of the proper age and scholastic acquirements, who shall pay twenty-five dollars per session for tuition each half-yearly session in advance. Such students are not required to become teachers, but in all other respects except to a slight extent in the course of study they must meet absolutely the same requirements as other students.

BOARDING.

Boarding can be obtained in the immediate neighborhood of the school at prices varying from $3.00 to $4.00 a week. The boarding houses selected by students must be approved by the Principal before the students are admitted.

Students who have no friends in the city should make early application to the Principal, who will see that they obtain suitable accommodations.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The Ideal.

The Faculty is the school; the school is for the students. Courses of study, methods, and all other conditions must take the relation of means to end. Education involves training, but is itself far more than training. Genuine education issues in symmetrically developed powers and sound moral character. Courses of study and methods as conceived and applied in this school aim at the realization of this high ideal.

Initiative.

From the beginning of the student's course to the end special emphasis is laid upon the development of the thinking powers, the judgment, and the will. The organization of the school as a whole encourages teaching, with a view to make the student ultimately independent of the teacher in the further acquisition of knowledge necessary for the progressive teacher. Thus individual initiative is encouraged and developed, so that students at graduation are ready to enter a community, organize a school if need be, and proceed to teach.

Text-Books.

Text-books are used as the basis and general outline of every regular branch of study. No text-book is slavishly followed. On the other hand no student is required to write from dictation the body of the material on which, at the end of the course, examination is to be based. Note-taking is at best a difficult art which can be profitably used but very sparingly, scarcely more than as exposition of the printed text, except by the most advanced student. Immature students must have the body of the subject before them in a tangible form without wasting the time and effort necessary to make written copies for themselves.

Usually several text-books on one subject are used in the same class, the books being thus compared, while the student is made to realize that, after all, a text-book is not a divinity to be worshipped, but merely one author's treatment of selected topics in a branch of knowledge.

Method in General.

Methods of teaching are explained and applied concretely, while the actual subject is itself being taught in the class. The best way to teach method is to teach the subject in the most effective way—probably combining the best of several so-called “methods.” What is done is of course explained to the class, and in every case pedagogical reasons assigned for each step. General methods, or principles, are studied in connection with the psychological laws upon which they rest; they receive further illustration in the History of Pedagogy.

Philosophy and Literature of Education.

Educational literature is kept prominently before the classes throughout the Junior and Senior Years. The standard books on the various phases of education and moral character are made familiar. New books in the same field, as well as the best magazine articles, are reviewed by teachers and members of classes, thus keeping the student in actual personal touch with the best in educational thought and practice, both of the past and the present.

Excursions.

Frequent excursions are made by all the classes to points of interest, both within and without Baltimore. The Monumental City is rich in historical suggestion and literary interest; it is a recognized center of learning; its libraries, including all those to which students may gain access, contain nearly one million volumes; its manufactures are numerous and varied, while picturesque and instructive localities in great number are within easy reach of this school by trolley.

Annapolis, the capital of the State and the seat of the greatest naval school in the world, is only one hour away. An excursion is made to this point annually by the Senior Class.

Washington, the nation's capital, is only forty-five minutes distant by the finest trains in the world, while historic Mount Vernon is but little farther. At least one of these points is visited annually.

NOTE.—Students are not required to go on any excursion where even trolley fares are necessary—they are at liberty to go, or to stay and continue the regular school duties as they may elect.

DEPARTMENT OF PEDAGOGY.The Model School.

This is an excellent elementary school in which are taught the usual eight grades which precede the High School.

Practice Teaching.

Seniors spend all the time that can profitably be spared from their own lectures and recitations either observing or teaching in the Model School under the immediate supervision of the most skilful teachers of the respective grades. This gives interest and zest to the inquiry into laws of mind development, and methods of imparting instruction.

Reviews.

While thus observing and teaching, Seniors are taken in thorough reviews in their own recitations through the elementary branches, such as grammar, arithmetic, geography, and others.

Special Method.

Thus, methods of teaching these branches are studied, explained, and applied coincidentally, in the actual study and teaching of the subjects.

Art of Teaching.

This course runs parallel with the observation of actual teaching in the Model School. Such books as White's Art of Teaching, the several volumes in special method by McMurry in so far as they deal with the teacher's work before the class, De Garmo's Essentials of Method, and Thorndike's Principles of Teaching are read. The class periods are devoted to the development and discussion of the different subjects studied, special attention being given to subjects touched upon by several different authors.

Experiences of members of the class are constantly drawn upon for illustration, and all the conditions of actual teaching are kept as vividly as possible before the class. They are drilled in the principles of the art of teaching by (1) personal observation of the art as applied in the Model School, and (2) class discussion of the general principles of the art as deduced by the ablest thinkers and writers upon the subject.

History of Pedagogy.

The aim of the course is both culture and guidance. The student is made acquainted with the scholarship, the educators, the systems of education, and the methods used, in the past centuries. But greater emphasis is laid upon (a) the relationship between the beliefs, laws and philosophies of nations and the intellectual and moral development of the people; (b) the common principles underlying good educational results; (c) the slow evolution of systems and methods in producing the best systems of the present day; (d) love, zeal, intelligence and philosophy as the fountains from which have flowed the most notable successes in education, past or present.

Psychology.

The aim in this work is practical application, in teaching, of the laws of the mind's activities. It is expected that the psychology of common knowledge and observation will now be systematized and consciously organized into a body of related principles. This will greatly enlarge the knowledge of the laws of mind, and at the same time furnish the indispensable scientific basis of the art of teaching.

During the first semester the student masters the outlines of technical psychology, using various text-books with verification through observation and experiment.

During the second semester, educational theory and educational literature of the past and present are reviewed in class, with continual reference to text-books in psychology for scientific principles by which to test the soundness of writings on education.

School Management and School Hygiene.

Several text-books furnish material for class discussion upon the different topics included in this course.

It is not desired to have the student accept a theory or opinion upon mere authority; but through discussion, example, application and comparisons the student is led to recognize that which seems fittest and best. Practical considerations of the needs of a teacher just beginning the independent conduct of a school guide the course throughout.

Health is ever of the first importance. Knowledge gained at the expense of health is dearly bought, no matter how valuable—even apparently necessary—may be that knowledge. Special emphasis is therefore laid upon the hygienic conditions of the school building.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH.

Correct expression, oral and written, is the aim in this department. Any student who fails to meet the requirements in English will not be recommended for a diploma. Reasonable command of correct English is a fundamental necessity, without which we can neither learn nor teach scientifically. Recognizing this the course begins with the student's entrance in the First Year and is steadily pursued throughout the entire course to graduation.

Rhetoric and Composition.

The course begins with a brief but thorough review of grammar which furnishes the foundation principles of language structure. Persistent, continual practice in both written and oral expression characterizes this course. Great emphasis is laid upon oral work. Thought and expression go hand in hand, and oral language being the natural mode of communication as well as a stimulus to thought, much time is given to this form of expression. Through conversation and questions thought is rounded out into the units of expression, namely, the sentence, the paragraph, and the theme.

Through text-books and the teacher's explanations students are led to see the reasons for the corrections made. Thus gradually, and as it were, on the student's personal experience, is built up the structure of the English language.

Written work has for its basis the experience, observations, and personal knowledge of the student. Clear ideas are essential to clear expression. What the student knows at first hand he can soon learn to tell in correct English. When some skill has been gained in expressing clearly and correctly his own familiar experiences, he is required to make new observations and acquire additional knowledge for further elaboration in thought and expression.

Memory of rules "for purposes of recitation only" is of course not required, but a sure grasp of the principles of language structure must be shown to entitle one to a passing number in this course.

History of English Literature.

The literature itself receives chief attention. Literature does not consist in historical facts about literature, however important these may be. Literature does not consist in long drawn out analyses of minutiae of which the intelligent reader never takes notice.

That literature is as a matter of fact, however, founded on historical facts, and conditions cannot be overlooked. The power to analyze the thought of a paragraph is also essential to the appreciation of literature. These points are kept in mind throughout the course, but reading, and the discussion in class of what has been read, forms the staple of the course.

Different works are assigned for reading, to different students, each student being required to report in class from time to time the substance of what has been read. A greater number of distinct faculties of the student's mind are perhaps exercised in this way than in any other yet devised; e. g., reading, to which far too little attention is paid by the average teacher; analysis, getting the thoughts of the author; synthesis, selecting and combining the things to report; power to tell interestingly what one knows, a prime factor in the teacher's success; not to mention vocabulary, discrimination, voice, and confidence in the presence of an audience.

American Literature.

During the second session American Literature is studied, the same methods in general being followed as in English Literature.

World Classics.

English translations of the world's masterpieces in literature, song, and story are read and studied co-operatively. Selections are made from year to year of such classics as Homer's Iliad, Homer's Odyssey, Vergil's Æneid, Dante's Divine Comedy, Tasso's Jerusalem Delivered, the Nibelungen Lied, selections from Schiller, Goethe, Hugo, Moliere, not to mention others more or less familiar to lovers of literature the world over.

Written abstracts and oral reports keep up the practice as well as the observance of good English. Only literary translations of the highest merit are used in this course.

Stories, Mythology, Folklore.

"Truth embodied in a tale shall enter in at lowly doors." The Greeks, the most interesting and intellectual of ancient peoples, taught their science and religion through beautiful legends, implicitly believed by them but in the language of present day wisdom called "Myths." These myths embody the science and religion of primitive man in the form which has ever appealed most powerfully to the mind of the child, namely, personification. How many difficulties has the teacher escaped when she has, like the wise old Greeks, first clearly grasped the essential principles of the various branches of knowledge, and then embodied these in tales of personal experience, adventure, and victory.

First, the meaning of the story selected for study is fully explored; next, each student presents a written abstract of the story as an exercise in composition to be corrected by the teacher, and finally the story is told before the class as it might be told to elementary pupils in a graded school. Finally the story is written in detail from memory for practice in capitalization, punctuation and paragraphing.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY.Greece and Rome.

Effect of geography and racial characteristics on development of Sparta and Athens; Greek life, literature and art; spread of Hellenism after Alexander. Evolution of Roman social and political institutions; relation of the empire to extension of Roman law and the Christian religion; Roman life and ideals.

Middle Ages.

The thread of the story is taken up where it was dropped at the end of the preceding course. The life, culture, religion, and thought of the Middle Ages are studied in a liberal way. The characteristics and institutions of the Teutonic race which overwhelmed Rome will of course be the central theme. The beginnings of the modern nations are traced, and the foundations of modern civilization clearly discerned.

Modern Europe.

The effort is made to give students a broad comprehension of great movements and principles, such as the Reformation, struggle against the Divine Right of Kings, Balance of Power, political revolutions and reconstruction of European states. Special emphasis is laid on those periods which most influenced American History.

American History.

The subject is liberally treated, the object being to give prospective teachers a broad and, at the same time, definite grasp of the larger cultural phases of the rich and varied history of our country.

Biography, sources of information, the reading and review in class of the best that has been written on American History are emphasized.

Maryland History.

Stress is laid upon the History of the State of Maryland. The prominent part which the State has taken in the development of the history of the country at large is best treated in its logical connection with the course in American History. In the same connection Maryland Biography is emphasized, many sons of Maryland having been makers of national as well as state history. The facts of Maryland History are, at the end of the course in American History, gathered together in a separate review.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

Constitution of the United States.

The living, actual constitution is studied historically and in its present day respects. Trifling technicalities receive only passing notice, while the thought and history underlying constitutional life and growth receive constant attention.

The class goes to Washington each year to see Congress in session, visiting the Executive Department, and other points of interest to the student of government.

Constitution of Maryland.

After a brief sketch of Maryland Constitutional History, stress is laid in this course upon the actual conduct of the present government of the State in its several branches. The class visits Annapolis each year, although the General Assembly can be seen in session only in alternate years.

School Law.

The body of School Law and the By-Laws of the State Board of Education are studied as actually applied in the conduct of the public school system of Maryland.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE.Agriculture.

An elementary course in which emphasis is laid upon the adaptation of crop to soil and climate; the great variety of Maryland's products not only agricultural, but mineral, animal, and manufactured; the geology, surface, and soils of Maryland, together with drainage, dairying, public roads, and the various arts and machines at present applied by the progressive farmer. Genuine education should show how the farm is at the root of all prosperity, and the public schools should teach our youth both the importance and the attractiveness of the farm.

Botany.

Plants are studied as living, breathing, working beings, with structures adapted to their functions and surroundings.

Elementary plant physiology is given a prominent place and experiments are performed by members of the class to show how plants live and grow. Incidentally the life story from seed to seed again is traced.

Special pains is taken to relate the work as closely as possible to the home, to agriculture and horticulture.

One or more topics with references are assigned to each member of the class, who prepares an outline of the subject matter, collects material to illustrate the same, and teaches a portion of the subject to the rest of the class.

As the season allows, out-door excursions are taken to study plants alive and in their homes, and to collect specimens for analysis and the beginnings of an herbarium.

Zoology.

The purpose of this course is to give the student, through text-book, laboratory, and field exercises a real acquaintance with the life of animals; their habits and homes; their enemies; their modes of escape and protection; insect and other noxious forms and the best means of combating them; their economic relations. Stress is laid upon adaptation, so that relation of the animal to its surroundings may be understood so far as possible.

Special emphasis will be laid upon those forms of animal life, a knowledge of which is of the greatest importance in the home, and on the farm.

Special topics are assigned for library work, lesson plans prepared and teaching exercises conducted as in Botany.

Physical Geography.

In this course each pupil is led to feel (1) that the earth is a whole—a unit having qualities or powers as a whole differing from the qualities of its parts.

(2) That each part—land, water, atmosphere, and life—has its own qualities, differing from the qualities and powers of all other parts.

(3) That the several parts and the whole are all working together to make the earth a home for man, and the means of his progress to better, higher, and nobler life.

Physics.

LABORATORY COURSE.

Experiment under expert direction is the feature of this course. While graduates of High Schools may have had an elementary course in Physics it is recognized that conditions ordinarily have not favored much experimentation on the part of the students. This defect is remedied. The largest and best lighted lecture room in the building is the Laboratory. The observational and experimental elements are emphasized throughout.

Each student is taught to construct simple inexpensive apparatus, thus learning that it is possible with the means at hand in the average school to get together a supply of apparatus sufficient to illustrate the laws of physical science taught in the schools of the State.

Special attention is given to those natural laws which underlie the phenomena of everyday life—clouds, rain, wind, snow, dew, change of season, and the application of those same laws in common machines, such as the grain thresher, the milk separator, the evaporator, the windmill, pump, hydraulic ram, the electric motor, the steam engine, and others.

In review more emphasis is laid upon the scientific aspect of Physics, the final definition and classification of those principles discovered, as it were, in the early part of the course by observation and experiment.

Chemistry.

LABORATORY COURSE.

It is the purpose of this course to call the attention of the students to the phenomena of change constantly occurring in the world about them and to give them the key with which they can unlock many of the processes and changes of everyday life.

Stress is laid upon the chemistry of common life, combustion, decay, fermentation, respiration, dyeing, bleaching, foods, manufacture of iron and steel, glass, lime.

In the laboratory exercise each student prepares simple apparatus and performs experiments so as to be able to handle apparatus skilfully and acquire the ability to use experiments in teaching. The laboratory work is followed by class discussion.

Special attention is given to the relation of Chemistry to other branches of science such as human physiology, physical geography, and nature study.

Excursions are made to a lime-kiln, to gas works, and to the great steel plant and coke ovens at Sparrows Point.

Nature Study.

This course contemplates the attainment of the following ends:

The outlining of courses of Nature Study adapted to the needs of children in the elementary schools.

The preparation of lesson plans for science work in elementary schools, adapting the knowledge gained from the previous science courses to this special work.

Teaching exercises to be conducted in class and also in the Model School.

Geography.

Home geography is taught by a series of elementary lessons given by the students under the direction of the teacher by means of nature, pictures, and sand table.

North America is studied as a typical continent. Then follows a study of the United States and Maryland. Finally Europe and Asia are briefly studied, mainly by comparison with North America.

Students make drainage and outline maps of the continents, showing the natural features which influence the distribution of climate, plants, and animals.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS.

Algebra.

In no other branch in the course is the Normal School more vitally interested in the thoroughness with which the work of the average graded school of the State is done. The course prescribed by the State Board of Education for elementary schools requires algebra in the second half of the seventh grade, while the eighth grade is required to complete quadratic equations. If this is done the student who enters the Maryland State Normal School on certificate of completion of the eighth grade (see page 13 of this catalogue) can easily get, in one year, all further algebra ever needed by any elementary school teacher anywhere. The Normal School course in Algebra is planned to meet these conditions. The further the student has gone in algebra before entering, the better for all concerned.

The course is practical and thorough rather than unnecessarily formal and severe. The requirements can all be met by the average student sixteen years of age. Should, however, a student wishing to enter be found deficient in algebra alone, provision is made in the school for making up this deficiency.

Plane Geometry.

In the study of this subject the aim is:

- (1) To develop right habits of investigation.
- (2) To insist upon accuracy of statement.
- (3) To have the student acquire the power to grasp and prove any simple geometrical problem.

(4) To apply the recently acquired knowledge of processes of grasping geometrical concepts in the teaching of the same propositions to others.

Solid Geometry.

Emphasis is laid upon the relation between geometrical propositions and figures, and the rules of mensuration. The class has frequent practice in the rules for finding the areas of pieces of land of all shapes, the areas of roads along or through the farm, and the measurement and laying off of foundations for buildings, and in the solution of other common problems met with by the mason, bricklayer, and house builder.

Trigonometry and Surveying.

This is an elementary, descriptive, practical course in the science of trigonometry, with some practical applications in the allied art of surveying, the determination of the boundary lines of the school lot, roads, farms, towns, States, noting connection with Geography in the location of meridians and parallels.

Arithmetic.

This is a thorough review course for Seniors. Emphasis is of course laid upon methods of teaching the subject in the grades. Both observation and practice in the Model School accompany the work. All of the accepted methods are discussed in connection both with the actual work in Arithmetic and the practice work. These methods are analyzed and criticised so that weak spots may be eliminated and strong points thoroughly familiarized.

NOTE.—Students who enter with deficiency in Arithmetic must make it up in special classes.

LATIN.

In the first year of the study First Year Latin is completed. This course does not require previous knowledge of Latin though some previous familiarity with forms is of great advantage.

Translation is of course the great aim; this involves, however, continual drill in forms and constructions. Special attention is given to those Latin words entering into English words either as roots, prefixes, or suffixes, thus offering a good review of etymology.

NOTE.—After the first year, Latin is elective, but if elected must be pursued to the end of the Junior Year.

During the second year, four books of Cæsar's Gallic War are read; Latin prose composition based on Cæsar. Study of Roman military affairs and of Cæsar's character and literary style. Sight translation.

During the third year, Cicero's Orations against Catiline are read and so much of the first six books of Vergil as time permits. Sight translation.

Latin prose composition based on the texts. Study of Roman private and public life, mythology, and literature.

MANUAL TRAINING.

The purpose of the course in manual training is to increase skill in manipulation, to stimulate originality in shape and color, to reinforce the more intellectual studies, to develop interest in industrial pursuits, and to prepare our students to teach manual training in the elementary schools.

No abstract exercises as such are given. Practically all practice is obtained in the construction of concrete objects of more or less value in themselves, which can be used in daily life, and which hold good when viewed from an æsthetical standpoint.

Paper folding and cardboard construction are presupposed. These subjects are, however, reviewed in the Senior Year as special preparation for teaching them.

Provision is made to build upon whatever previous training the student may have had, so that any student may advance as far as time and ability allow. The more advanced the work already done, the more good may be obtained from the course at the Normal School.

The art element in manual training should be the one to make it live. The effort is made to correct the all too frequent divorce between art and manual training. While the process side of the work is not neglected, the product is also given consideration, and an artistic result is sought for.

The course includes knife work, bench work, mat and rug weaving, cord, reed, raffia, Venetian iron, and sheet metal work. For clay modeling and decorated leather, see "Art," page 40.

VOICE CULTURE.

The great emphasis rightly laid at present upon vocal instruction makes the possession of a good voice a prime consideration for the teacher. Henry Van Dyke has said in effect, and nearly in these words, that one may have a good voice as certainly as one may have a clean face if only the necessary means be as persistently attended to in the one case as in the other.

Continual actual use of the voice under expert direction is the only certain way to a "good voice." Directions about use of the voice are valuable, but only as they aid the student in the management and control of the voice in actual speaking. The voice has its practical use for the teacher in the power to express thoughts clearly and convincingly. The first aim, therefore, is to have the pupil give simply and earnestly his own thoughts, and afterwards the thoughts of others as recorded in the best literature.

Careful study is required on those points which are necessary to clear and natural expression.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

The course in physical training consists of the free-standing exercises and apparatus work of the Swedish system of gymnastics. To this is added, the last two years of the course, instruction in the theory of the work and practice in teaching. Heavy apparatus work is not required. The chief aim of the course is to provide regular, systematic exercise of the body for every student. Every student is expected to attend the regular periods for exercise twice a week throughout the entire course whether or not she may have a number in the theoretical part of the course, because at least that much relaxation is essential to good health and successful mental effort.

ART.

The course is graded as follows:

I. Study of form in outline, and shaded in pencil. Use of colored crayons in still life work, and flowers from Nature.

II. Geometric and applied design; still life work in water colors, and outdoor sketching.

III. Work in water color in flowers and still life, composition and figure drawing from life in charcoal,—outdoor sketching.

IV. Clay modeling, study of historic ornament. Practice with different media of still life and flowers; plant form and its adaptation in decoration; repousse work in leather; outdoor sketching.

VOCAL MUSIC.

The importance of vocal music in elementary schools is fully realized. It is recognized that the teacher who cannot read and interpret simple music for herself and teach it to her pupils is at a serious disadvantage. The elements of vocal music are thoroughly taught, notation, time, phrasing, and interpretation receiving special attention. Sight singing comes later in the course, while the methods of teaching music receive attention in the Senior Year.

THE MARYLAND STATE NORMAL SCHOOL

I. The Normal Department.

This is the real Normal School, the department for which the school was founded, and for which it has been maintained. Since the change several years ago from the old 'Junior, Middle and Senior,' Classes to the present First Year, Second Year, Junior and Senior Classes, this department has been devoted more and more exclusively to preparation for and practice in teaching. This department contains only two of the four years mentioned above, the Junior and the Senior Years.

II. The High School Department.

This department corresponds to the rural high schools, the First Year and Second Year Classes being equivalent to somewhat more than the last two years of the rural high school. The course of study is practically that of the last two years prescribed by the State Board of Education for rural high schools. The graduates of this department stand on an equal footing with the graduates of "approved high schools," and are of course admitted to the Junior Class of the Normal Department.

PREPARATION FOR TEACHING.

Teaching is not only an art; it is one of the most difficult and exacting of all arts. It has long been a commonplace in words that knowledge is one thing while teaching is quite another thing. Have the deeds of school authorities always kept pace with their words on this point? Workers in any art must make a beginning, but in every art except teaching it seems to be an axiom that the very best material alone is worth putting through this experimental stage. In teaching, school authorities seem too often willing to bear with beginners through a trying experimental stage without ever stopping to inquire whether, when thus "trained," the teacher in question, because of the lack of liberal culture and the consequent lack of the powers of adaptation, analysis and combination, can ever develop into the influential teacher so ardently hoped for. With the normal school facilities now provided this should no longer be necessary in Maryland. The future efficiency of the elementary schools, as well as the future of the individuals concerned, should not be heavily handicapped by the employment of high school graduates,—except where necessary,—before they have enjoyed the essentially broadening and ripening general culture to be gained through the two years of study and special preparation offered by the Maryland State Normal School, Baltimore.

TO THE HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE.

The temptation to begin teaching without further preparation is great. Don't do it. Ever louder becomes the cry for broader culture on the part of those who are to assume the responsibilities of training the young of our State for future usefulness and happiness. Broaden your minds and enrich your experience by catching something of the thought and experience of the leaders of our race in all ages.

ADMISSION.

Baltimore City and each county is entitled to send two students for each of its representatives in the General Assembly.

The apportionment is as follows:

Allegany County, 12; Anne Arundel County, 10; Baltimore County, 14; Baltimore City, 56; Calvert County 6; Caroline County, 6; Carroll County, 10; Cecil County, 8; Charles County, 6; Dorchester County, 10; Frederick County, 12; Garrett County, 6; Harford County, 10; Howard County, 6; Kent County, 6; Montgomery County, 10; Prince George's County, 10; Queen Anne's County, 8; St. Mary's County, 6; Somerset County, 8; Talbot County, 8; Washington County, 12; Wicomico County, 8; Worcester County 8.

Persons desiring to enter the school should make application to the Board of School Commissioners of their respective counties, or to the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore. The law requires the appointees to be selected by the several Boards of County School Commissioners, and the Board of Commissioners of Public Schools of the City of Baltimore.

Satisfactory completion of the eighth grade of the Rural High Schools, according to the By-Laws of the State Board of Education, certified in writing by the teacher under whom the work was done, entitles to entrance into the First Year Class without examination. An examination will be held at the opening of school for those who cannot in any other satisfactory manner show that they are prepared to do, with profit to themselves and credit to the school, the work of the First Year Class.

Those who wish to enter the Second Year Class must show that they have completed the work of all previous Classes.

Graduates of approved High Schools and the High School Department of the Normal School are admitted without examination to the Junior Class.

Students who are under fifteen (females), or sixteen (males), years of age, or are deficient in scholarship, will be provided for in the Elementary Department and Preparatory Classes without any other payments than those which would have been required had they succeeded in entering the Normal School proper.

DIPLOMAS AND CERTIFICATES.

The main object of the school is to give professional training to those who intend to become teachers, and all the departments of study are considered as means to this end. But the general course is well adapted to those who have no professional object in view, and wish merely to obtain a liberal education.

Those who complete to the satisfaction of the Faculty the courses required for graduation receive the diploma of the school. After two years, one of which shall have been spent in actual teaching, if the County Superintendent under whom the teaching was done so recommends in writing, the Secretary of the State Board of Education will, with the approval of the Board, affix the seal of the Board, making the diploma a Life Certificate.

EXPENSES.

Students appointed by the County School Boards, or by the Baltimore City Board, are under no expense for tuition. A deposit of five dollars is required from every student upon entrance, as a guarantee against loss of or damage to school property. This deposit will be returned to students upon final withdrawal from school, after deduction for loss, damage, or any arrearage to the school.

In addition to the regular appointees, there will be received, as required by law, a limited number of students of the proper age and scholastic acquirements, who shall pay twenty-five dollars per session for tuition each half-yearly session in advance. Such students are not required to become teachers; otherwise, they will be expected to meet the same requirements as other students.

BOARDING.

Boarding can be obtained in the immediate neighborhood of the school at prices varying from $3.00 to $4.00 a week. The boarding houses selected by students must be approved by the Principal before the students are admitted.

Students who have no friends in the city should make early application to the Principal, who will see that they obtain suitable accommodations.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The Ideal.

The Faculty is the school; the school is for the students. Courses of study, methods, and all other conditions must take the relation of means to end. Education involves training, but is itself far more than training. Genuine education issues in symmetrically developed powers and sound moral character. Courses of study and methods as conceived and applied in this school aim at the realization of this high ideal.

Initiative.

From the beginning of the student's course to the end special emphasis is laid upon the development of the thinking powers, the judgment, and the will. The organization of the school as a whole encourages teaching, with a view to make the student ultimately independent of the teacher in the further acquisition of knowledge necessary for the progressive teacher. Thus individual initiative is encouraged and developed, so that students at graduation are ready to enter a community, organize a school if need be, and proceed to teach.

Text-Books.

Text-books are used as the basis and general outline of every regular branch of study. No text-book is slavishly followed. On the other hand no student is required to write from dictation the body of the material on which, at the end of the course, examinations is to be based. Note-taking is at best a difficult art which can be profitably used but very sparingly, scarcely more than as exposition of the printed text, except by the most advanced student. Immature students must have the body of the subject before them in a tangible form without wasting the time and effort necessary to make written copies for themselves.

Usually several text-books on one subject are used in the same class, the books being thus compared, while the student is made to realize that, after all, a text-book is not a divinity to be worshipped, but merely one author's treatment of selected topics in a branch of knowledge.

Method in General.

Methods of teaching are explained and applied concretely, while the actual subject is itself being taught in the class. The best way to teach method is to teach the subject in the most effective way—probably combining the best of several so-called “methods.” What is done is of course explained to the class, and in every case pedagogical reasons assigned for each step. General methods, or principles, are studied in connection with the psychological laws upon which they rest; they receive further illustration in the History of Pedagogy.

Philosophy and Literature of Education.

Educational literature is kept prominently before the classes throughout the Junior and Senior Years. The standard books on the various phases of education and moral character are made familiar. New books in the same field, as well the best magazine articles, are reviewed by teachers and members of classes, thus keeping the student in actual personal touch with the best in educational thought and practice, both of the past and the present.

Excursions.

Frequent excursions are made by all the classes to points of interest, both within and without Baltimore. The Monumental City is rich in historical suggestion and literary interest; it is a recognized center of learning; its libraries, including all those to which students may gain access, contain nearly one million volumes; its manufactures are numerous and varied, while picturesque and instructive localities in great number are within easy reach of this school by trolley.

Annapolis, the capital of the State and the seat of the greatest naval school in the world, is only one hour away. An excursion is made to this point annually by the Senior Class.

Washington, the nation's capital, is only forty-five minutes distant by the finest trains in the world, while historic Mount Vernon is but little farther. At least one of these points is visited annually.

NOTE.—Students are not required to go on any excursion where even trolley fares are necessary—they are at liberty to go, or to stay and continue the regular school duties as they may elect.

DEPARTMENT OF PEDAGOGY.The Model School.

This is an excellent elementary school in which are taught the usual eight grades which precede the High School.

Practice Teaching.

Seniors spend all the time that can profitably be spared from their own lectures and recitations either observing or teaching in the Model School under the immediate supervision of the most skillful teachers of the respective grades. This gives interest and zest to the inquiry into laws of mind development, and methods of imparting instruction.

Reviews.

While thus observing and teaching, Seniors are taken in thorough reviews in their own recitations through the elementary branches, such as grammar, arithmetic, geography, and others.

Special Method.

Thus, methods of teaching these branches are studied, explained, and applied coincidentally, in the actual study and teaching of the subjects.

Art of Teaching.

This course runs parallel with the observation of actual teaching in the Model School.

Experiences of members of the class are constantly drawn upon for illustration, and all the conditions of actual teaching are kept as vividly as possible before the class. They are drilled in the principles of the art of teaching by (1) personal observation of the art as applied in the Model School, and (2) class discussion of the general principles of the art as deduced by the ablest thinkers and writers upon the subject.

History of Pedagogy.

The aim of the course is both culture and guidance. The student is made acquainted with the scholarship, the educators, the systems of education, and the methods used, in the past centuries. But greater emphasis is laid upon (a) the relationship between the beliefs, laws and philosophies of nations and the intellectual and moral development of the people; (b) the common principles underlying good educational results (c) the slow evolution of systems and methods in producing the best systems of the present day; (d) love, zeal, intelligence and philosophy as the fountains from which have flowed the most notable successes in education, past or present.

During the first semester the student masters the outlines of technical psychology, using various text-books with verification through observation and experiment.

During the second semester, the Class is occupied with the application of psychological principles to the practical problems of the school room. Continual reference is made to many different text-books in Psychology.

School Law, Management, &c.

Several text-books furnish material for class discussion upon the different topics included in this course.

It is not desired to have the student accept a theory or opinion upon mere authority; but through discussion, example, application and comparisons the student is led to recognize that which seems fittest and best. Practical considerations of the needs of a teacher just beginning the independent conduct of a school guide the course throughout.

Health is ever of the first importance. Knowledge gained at the expense of health is dearly bought, no matter how valuable—even apparently necessary—may be that knowledge. Special emphasis is therefore laid upon the hygienic conditions of the school building.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH.

Correct expression, oral and written, is the aim in this department. Any student who fails to meet the requirements in English will not be recommended for a diploma. Reasonable command of correct English is a fundamental necessity, without which we can neither learn nor teach scientifically. Recognizing this the course begins with the student's entrance in the First Year and is steadily pursued throughout the entire course to graduation.

Rhetoric and Composition.

The course begins with a brief but thorough review of grammar which furnishes the foundation principles of language structure. Persistent, continual practice in both written and oral expression characterizes this course. Great emphasis is laid upon oral work. Thought and expression go hand in hand, and oral language being the natural mode of communication as well as a stimulus to thought, much time is given to this form of expression. Through conversation and questions thought is rounded out into the units of expression, namely, the sentence, the paragraph, and the theme.

Through text-books and the teacher's explanations students are led to see the reasons for the corrections made. Thus gradually, and as it were, on the student's personal experience, is built up the structure of the English language.

Written work has for its basis the experience, observations, and personal knowledge of the student. Clear ideas are essential to clear expression. What the student knows at first hand he can soon learn to tell in correct English. When some skill has been gained in expressing clearly and correctly his own familiar experiences, he is required to make new observations and acquire additional knowledge for further elaboration in thought and expression.

Memory of rules "for purposes of recitation only" is of course not required, but a sure grasp of the principles of language structure must be shown to entitle one to a passing number in this course.

History of English Literature.

The literature itself receives chief attention. Literature does not consist in historical facts about literature however important these may be. Literature does not consist in long drawn out analyses of minutiae of which the intelligent reader never takes notice.

That literature is as a matter of fact, however, founded on historical facts, and conditions cannot be overlooked. The power to analyze the thought of a paragraph is also essential to the appreciation of literature. These points are kept in mind throughout the course, but reading, and the discussion in class of what has been read, forms the staple of the course.

Different works are assigned for reading to different students, each student being required to report in class from time to time the substance of what has been read. A greater number of distinct faculties of the student's mind are perhaps exercised in this way than in any other yet devised; e. g., reading, to which far too little attention is paid by the average teacher; analysis, getting the thoughts of the author; synthesis, selecting and combining the things to report; power to tell interestingly what one knows, a prime factor in the teacher's success; not to mention vocabulary, discrimination, voice, and confidence in the presence of an audience.

American Literature.

During the second session American Literature is studied, the same methods in general being followed as in English Literature.

World Classics

English translations of the world's masterpieces in literature, song, and story are read and studied cooperatively. Selections are made from year to year of such classics as Homer's Iliad, Homer's Odyssey, Vergil's Æneid, Dante's Divine Comedy, Tasso's Jerusalem Delivered, the Nibelungen Lied, selections from Schiller, Goethe, Hugo, Molere, not to mention others more or less familiar to lovers of literature the world over.

Written abstracts and oral reports keep up the practice as well as the observance of good English. Only literary translations of the highest merit are used in this course.

Stories, Mythology, Folklore.

"Truth embodied in a tale shall enter it at lowly doors." The Greeks, the most interesting and intellectual of ancient peoples, taught their science and religion through beautiful legends, implicitly believed by them but in the language of present day wisdom called "Myths." These myths embody the science and religion of primitive man in the form which has ever appealed most powerfully to the mind of the child, namely, personification. How many difficulties has the teacher escaped when she has, like the wise old Greeks, first clearly grasped the essential principles of the various branches of knowledge, and then embodied these in tales of personal experience, adventure and victory.

First, the meaning of the story selected for study is fully explored; next, each student presents a written abstract of the story as an exercise in composition to be corrected by the teacher, and finally the story is told before the class as it might be told to elementary pupils in a graded school. Finally the story is written in detail from memory for practice in capitalization, punctuation and paragraphing.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY.

Greece and Rome.

Effect of geography and racial characteristics on development of Sparta and Athens; Greek life, literature and art; spread of Hellenism after Alexander. Evolution of Roman social and political institutions; relation of the empire to extension of Roman law and the Christian religion; Roman life and ideals.

Middle Ages.

The thread of the story is taken up where it was dropped at the end of the preceding course. The life, culture, religion, and thought of the Middle Ages are studied in a liberal way. The characteristics and institutions of the Teutonic race which overwhelmed Rome will of course be the central theme. The beginnings of the modern nations are traced, and the foundations of modern civilization clearly discerned.

Modern Europe.

The effort is made to give students a broad comprehension of great movements and principles, such as the Reformation, struggle against the Divine Right of Kings, Balance of Power, political revolutions and reconstruction of European States. Special emphasis is laid on those periods which most influenced American History.

American History.

The subject is liberally treated, the object being to give prospective teachers a broad and, at the same time, definite grasp of the larger cultural phases of the rich and varied history of our country.

Biography, sources of information, the reading and review in class of the best that has been written on American History are emphasized.

Maryland History.

Stress is laid upon the History of the State of Maryland. The prominent part which the State has taken in the development of the history of the country at large is best treated in its logical connection with the course in American History. In the same connection Maryland Biography is emphasized, many sons of Maryland having been makers of national as well as State history. The facts of Maryland History are, at the end of the course in American History, gathered together in a separate review.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

Constitution of the United States.

The living, actual constitution is studied historically and in its present day aspects. Trifling technicalities receive only passing notice, while the thought and history underlying constitutional life and growth receive constant attention.

The class goes to Washington each year to see Congress in session, visiting the Executive Department, and other points of interest to the student of government.

Constitution of Maryland.

After a brief sketch of Maryland Constitutional History, stress is laid in this course upon the actual conduct of the present government of the State in its several branches. The class visits Annapolis each year, although the General Assembly can be seen in session only in alternate years.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE.Agriculture.

An elementary course in which emphasis is laid upon the adaptation of crop to soil and climate; the great variety of Maryland's products not only agricultural, but mineral, animal, and manufactured; the geology, surface, and soils of Maryland, together with drainage, dairying, public roads, and the various arts and machines at present applied by the progressive farmer. Genuine education should show how the farm is at the root of all prosperity, and the public schools should teach our youth both the importance and the attractiveness of the farm.

Botany.

Plants are studied as living, breathing, working beings, with structures adapted to their functions and surroundings.

Elementary plant physiology is given a prominent place and experiments are performed by members of the class to show how plants live and grow. Incidentally the life story from seed to seed again is traced.

Special pains is taken to relate the work as closely as possible to the home, to agriculture and horticulture.

One or more topics with references are assigned to each member of the class, who prepares an outline of the subject matter, collects material to illustrate the same, and teaches a portion of the subject to the rest of the class.

As the season allows, out-door excursions are taken to study plants alive and in their homes, and to collect specimens for analysis and the beginnings of an herbarium.

Zoology.

The purpose of this course is to give the student, through text-book, laboratory, and field exercises a real acquaintance with the life of animals; their habits and homes; their enemies; their modes of escape and protection; insect and other noxious forms and the best means of combating them; their economic relations. Stress is laid upon adaptation, so that relation of the animal to its surroundings may be understood so far as possible.

Special emphasis will be laid upon those forms of animal life, a knowledge of which is of the greatest importance in the home, and on the farm.

Special topics are assigned for library work, lesson plans prepared and teaching exercises conducted as in Botany.

Physical Geography.

In this course each pupil is led to feel (1) that the earth is a whole—a unit having qualities or powers as a whole differing from the qualities of its parts.

(2) That each part—land, water, atmosphere, and life—has its own qualities, differing from the qualities and powers of all other parts.

(3) That the several parts and the whole are all working together to make the earth a home for man, and the means of his progress to better, higher, and nobler life.

Physics.

LABORATORY COURSE.

Experiment under expert direction is the feature of this course. While graduates of High Schools may have had an elementary course in Physics it is recognized that conditions ordinarily have not favored much experimentation on the part of the students. This defect is remedied. The largest and best lighted lecture room in the building is the Laboratory. The observational and experimental elements are emphasized throughout.

Each student is taught to construct simple inexpensive apparatus, thus learning that it is possible with the means at hand in the average school to get together a supply of apparatus sufficient to illustrate the laws of physical science taught in the schools of the State.

Special attention is given to those natural laws which underlie the phenomena of everyday life—clouds, rain, wind, snow, dew, change of season, and the application of those same laws in common machines, such as the grain thresher, the milk separator, the evaporator, the windmill, pump, hydraulic ram, the electric motor, the steam engine, and others.

In review more emphasis is laid upon the scientific aspect of Physics, the final definition and classification of those principles discovered, as it were in the early part of the course by observation and experiment.

Chemistry.

LABORATORY COURSE.

It is the purpose of this course to call the attention of the students to the phenomena of change constantly occurring in the world about them and to give them the key with which they can unlock many of the processes and changes of everyday life.

Stress is laid upon the chemistry of common life, combustion, decay, fermentation, respiration, dyeing, bleaching, foods, manufacture of iron and steel, glass, lime.

In the laboratory exercise each student prepares simple apparatus and performs experiments so as to be able to handle apparatus skillfully and acquire the ability to use experiments in teaching. The laboratory work is followed by class discussion.

Special attention is given to the relation of Chemistry to other branches of science such as human physiology, physical geography, and nature study.

Excursions are made to a lime-kiln, to gas works, and to the great steel plant and coke ovens at Sparrows Point.

Nature Study.

This course contemplates the attainment of the following ends:

The outlining of courses of Nature Study adapted to the needs of children in the elementary schools.

The preparation of lesson plans for science work in elementary schools, adapting the knowledge gained from the previous science courses to this special work.

Teaching exercises to be conducted in class and also in the Model School.

Geography.

Home geography is taught by a series of elementary lessons given by the students under the direction of the teacher by means of nature, pictures, and sand table.

North America is studied as a typical continent. Then follows a study of the United States and Maryland. Finally Europe and Asia are briefly studied, mainly by comparison with North America.

Students make drainage and outline maps of the continents, showing the natural features which influence the distribution of climate, plants, and animals.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS.

Algebra.

In no other branches in the course is the Normal School more vitally interested in the thoroughness with which the work of the average graded school of the State is done. The course prescribed by the State Board of Education for elementary schools requires algebra in the second half of the seventh grade, while the eighth grade is required to complete quadratic equations. If this is done the student who enters the Maryland State Normal School on certificate of completion of the eighth grade (see page 10 of this catalogue) can easily get, in one year, all further algebra ever needed by any elementary school teacher anywhere. The Normal School course in Algebra is planned to meet these conditions. The further the student has gone in algebra before entering, the better for all concerned.

The course is practical and thorough rather than unnecessarily formal and severe. The requirements can all be met by the average student sixteen years of age. Should, however, a student wishing to enter be found deficient in algebra alone, provision is made in the school for making up this deficiency.

Plane Geometry.

In the study of this subject the aim is :

- (1) To develop right habits of investigation.
- (2) To insist upon accuracy of statement.
- (3) To have the student acquire the power to grasp and prove any simple geometrical problem.
- (4) To apply the recently acquired knowledge of processes of grasping geometrical concepts in the teaching of the same propositions to others.

Solid Geometry.

Emphasis is laid upon the relation between geometrical propositions and figures, and the rules of mensuration. The class has frequent practice in the rules for finding the areas of pieces of lands of all shapes, the areas of roads along or through the farm, and the measurement and laying off of foundations for buildings, and in the solution of other common problems met with by the mason, bricklayer, and house builder.

Trigonometry and Surveying.

This is an elementary, descriptive, practical course in the science of trigonometry, with some practical applications in the allied art of surveying, the determination of the boundary lines of the school lot, roads, farms, towns, States, noting connection with Geography in the location of meridians and parallels.

Arithmetic.

This is a thorough review course for Seniors. Emphasis is of course laid upon methods of teaching the subject in the grades. Both observation and practice in the Model School accompany the work. All of the accepted methods are discussed in connection both with the actual work in Arithmetic and the practice work. These methods are analyzed and criticised so that weak spots may be eliminated and strong points thoroughly familiarized.

NOTE—Students who enter with deficiency in Arithmetic must make it up in special classes.

LATIN.

In the first year of the study First Year Latin is completed. This course does not require previous knowledge of Latin though some previous familiarity with forms is of great advantage.

Translation is of course the great aim; this involves, however, continual drill in forms and constructions. Special attention is given to those Latin words entering into English words either as roots, prefixes, or suffixes, thus offering a good review of etymology.

NOTE.—After the first year, Latin is elective, but if elected must be pursued to the end of the Junior Year.

During the second year, four books of Cæsar's Gallic War are read; Latin Prose composition based on Cæsar. Study of Roman military affairs and of Cæsar's character and literary style. Sight translation.

During the third year, Cicero's Orations against Catiline are read and so much of the first six books of Vergil as time permits. Sight translation.

Latin prose composition based on the texts. Study of Roman private and public life, mythology and literature.

MANUAL TRAINING.

The purpose of the course in manual training is to increase skill in manipulation, to stimulate originality in shape and color, to reinforce the more intellectual studies, to develop interest in industrial pursuits, and to prepare our students to teach manual training in the elementary schools.

No abstract exercises as such are given. Practically all practice is obtained in the construction of concrete objects of more or less value in themselves, which can be used in daily life, and which hold good when viewed from an æsthetical standpoint.

Paper folding and cardboard construction are presupposed. These subjects are, however, reviewed in the Senior Year as special preparation for teaching them.

Provision is made to build upon whatever previous training the student may have had, so that any student may advance as far as time and ability allow. The more advanced the work already done, the more good may be obtained from the course at the Normal School.

The art element in manual training should be the one to make it live. The effort is made to correct the all too frequent divorce between art and manual training. While the process side of the work is not neglected, the product is also given consideration, and an artistic result is sought for.

The course includes knife work, bench work, mat and rug weaving, cord, reed, raffia, Venetian iron, and sheet metal work. For clay modeling and decorated leather, see "Art," page 33.

VOICE CULTURE.

The great emphasis rightly laid at present upon vocal instruction makes the possession of a good voice a prime consideration for the teacher. Henry Van Dyke has said in effect, and nearly in these words, that one may have a good voice as certainly as one may have a clean face if only the necessary means be as persistently attended to in the one case as in the other.

Continual actual use of the voice under expert direction is the only certain way to a "good voice." Directions about use of the voice are valuable, but only as they aid the student in the management and control of the voice in actual speaking. The voice has its practical use for the teacher in the power to express thoughts clearly and convincingly. The first aim, therefore, is to have the pupil give simply and earnestly his own thoughts, and afterwards the thoughts of others as recorded in the best literature.

Careful study is required on those points which are necessary to clear and natural expression.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

The course in physical training consists of the free-standing exercises and apparatus work of the Swedish system of gymnastics. To this is added, the last two years of the course, instruction in the theory of the work and practice in teaching. Heavy apparatus work is not required. The chief aim of the course is to provide regular, systematic exercise of the body for every student. Every student is expected to attend the regular periods for exercise twice a week throughout the entire course whether or not she may have a number in the theoretical part of the course, because at least that much relaxation is essential to good health and successful mental effort.

ART.

The course is graded as follows:

I. Study of form in outline, and shaded in pencil. Use of colored crayons in still life work, and flowers from Nature.

II. Geometric and applied design; still life work in water colors, and outdoor sketching.

III. Work in water color in flowers and still life, composition and figure drawing from life in charcoal,—outdoor sketching.

IV. Clay modeling, study of historic ornament. Practice with different media of still life and flowers; plant form and its adaptation in decoration; repousse work in leather; outdoor sketching.

VOCAL MUSIC.

The importance of vocal music in elementary schools is fully realized. It is recognized that the teacher who cannot read and interpret simple music for herself and teach it to her pupils is at a serious disadvantage. The elements of vocal music are thoroughly taught, notation, time, phrasing and interpretation receiving special attention. Sight singing comes later in the course, while the methods of teaching music receive attention in the Senior Year.
